4-YEAR-OLD LIT FIRE THAT KILLED INVALID

PORTLAND, Ind. (AP)—A four-year-old boy has admitted starting a house fire which killed a young invalid woman, authorities said today.

The youngster admitted pouring kerosene on a kitchen table and in front of the chair in which the woman sat watching, paralyzed, then tossing a match into the liquid, Fire Chief Meredith Sanders said.

Gaglardi Denies Any Favors Given to Road Contractors

'Accusers Smoke Opium Pipes'

By FRANK RUTTER

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi today flatly denied favoring contractors as he appeared in the witness box at the highway graft inquiry.

"He must have been smoking an opium pipe," Mr. Gaglardi said of a letter in which a contractor claimed he could make $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 through favors.

Mr. Gaglardi said there had been no preferential treatment as far as he knew in the award of Project 819 to L and M Logging Co. in 1957.

This is the project which sparked the allegations of graft—from Montana contractor Dick Holzworth.

The highways minister also denied that he had given any favors to the contractors working on 819.

And he said it was "inconceivable" that the same group had been promised other contracts to make good their losses on 819.

Mr. Gaglardi denied any personal role in the payment of a $6,702 mortgage owed by a former employee of his department and member of his Kamloops church, Vincent L. Gresty.

He also testified that Mr. Gresty personally told him that he was not involved with subcontractors on the project while still a departmental employee. He said the highways department "couldn't find anything" about Mr. Gresty making money on the side through equipment rentals.

All Allegations Disproved

The highways minister appeared on the stand despite the contention of his lawyer, Angelo Branca, that all the allegations against him have been disproved in the past five weeks of the inquiry.

Mr. Branca termed Mr. Holzworth's allegations, contained in a sworn affidavit, as "irresponsible" and said they were made by "an irresponsible man."

Mr. Gaglardi appeared at the request of Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, who said chairman Irvine Corbett (SC-Yale) should take the responsibility of summoning him.

The minister was to continue on the stand later today.

He will be followed by summation from Mr. Branca and inquiry counsel Lloyd G. McKenzie.

This means the inquiry, which had adjourned for a four-day Easter recess, could wind up Wednesday.

Mr. Gaglardi began by saying that L and M Logging had been awarded the 819 contract on the advice of his deputy minister and chief engineer.

Deputy '100% Above Board'

He said the deputy, Evan Jones, had decided to give the company extra time to come up with a proper bond for the job, after its original bid bond was found invalid.

The bond, earlier evidence showed, had been issued to another company, H. W. Galbraith, and was not meant for Project 819.

Mr. Gaglardi said he was sure Mr. Jones was "100 per cent above board."

He also said he discussed the contract award with the deputy minister of public works in Ottawa because it was a Trans-Canada Highway project.

He said B.C. went ahead with the contract with L and M after "clarification" of questions from Ottawa. He said the go-ahead would not have been given without Ottawa's approval.

Protests about the award from the Heavy Construction Association of B.C., he said, were probably because L and M was not a member of the association, while all the other bidders were.

Mr. Gaglardi said he had often had representations from contractors to award contracts to second low bidders. But his policy was to grant them to the low bidder provided everything was in order.

"If I would bend one iota I would be in a very difficult position," Mr. Gaglardi said.

Unaware of Changes In Figures

Two of Mr. Holzworth's allegations were about changes in figures on progress estimate sheets submitted to Victoria on Project 819.

The contractor charged that the government paid $135,000 for work that was never done.

Mr. Gaglardi today said that he was unaware of the changes in figures. The first he heard of them, he said, was when a reporter phoned him in Chicago at 3 a.m. in February this year.

The minister said that Burton Lymburner, the president of L and M initially, "at no time" received advantages from the highways department.

Clyde W. Thornton, the vice-president of the firm that succeeded L and M, Union Contractors, also never received any assurances, Mr. Gaglardi said.

It was Mr. Thornton who wrote the "Friend Dick" letter to Mr. Holzworth saying that the department had promised "every break in the world" and "liberal treatment" on a new contract that would make $2,000,000 to $3,000,000.

Mr. Gaglardi said the letter must have been "propaganda"—as Mr. Thornton testified it was.

Mr. Holzworth also alleged the mortgage was paid off by

Dief Keeps Mum

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Diefenbaker today announced he would be calling on Govenor-General Vanier at noon Wednesday, but he left doubts as to whether it would be to submit his resignation.

Assumptions by reporters that the visit was set for the purpose of Mr. Diefenbaker's resignation were "not well founded," the prime minister asserted.

But at the same time he indicated his resignation and that of his administration would be forthcoming, presumably later in the week—on Thursday or Friday.

It appeared the prime minister was working towards a Friday or Monday deadline for the turnover of power to a Liberal government under Lester B. Pearson. This, it was understood, was by informal agreement with Mr. Pearson. Liberal sources said a Monday takeover was what they were aiming for, although Mr. Pearson probably would be ready to install a full cabinet by Friday.

Other Factors

Other factors slowing down the shift in government included the necessity for members of the Diefenbaker cabinet to clean out their offices and remove personal papers from files.

It also has been learned that an Ottawa cartage company has been retained to move Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker's personal belongings from the prime minister's official residence, 24 Sussex Drive, on Wednesday. The belongings would be placed in storage until the Pearsons moved out of the official opposition leader's residence, Tornaway, in the fashionable suburban Rockcliffe district, and into 24 Sussex.

This morning Mr. Diefenbaker announced, as he was entering a cabinet meeting, that he would be seeing the governor-general at noon Wednesday (this clarified his Monday statement that he expected to see His Excellency either today or Wednesday.)

On the basis of his announcement today it was assumed that he would be submitting his resignation at noon Wednesday. But he also said there would be a cabinet meeting Wednesday afternoon, after the visit to the governor-general.

Shows Surprise

As Mr. Diefenbaker came out of cabinet in the early afternoon, reporters sought further clarification. Did the cabinet meeting following the visit to Government House indicate he would be submitting a "post-dated" resignation?

The prime minister seemed surprised by the question, replying that he would have to understand the implications of the question before answering.

Reporters then said they gathered from his earlier statements that he would be resigning at noon Wednesday.

"That's what you wrote," he said sharply to the questioning

DEMANDS MADE PUBLIC

Cuban Exile Leader Draws U.S. Rebuke

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has rebuked Cuban exile leader Jose Miro Cardona for his purported bitter denunciation of U.S. policy toward Cuba.

In doing so, the government made public for the first time Monday what has been rumored for days: That Miro had demanded a voice in U.S. policy toward Cuba—or else $50,000,000 to mount an exile expedition against Premier Fidel Castro.

The U.S. government is not prepared to make any such agreements, the state department said. It took this position in a rejoinder to Miro's reported criticism of U.S.-Cuban policy in his 20-page letter of resignation as president of the Cuban Revolutionary Council.

The Miro letter never has been made public. But enough informed descriptions of the letter were in the air for the state department to turn loose its strong statement.

CARDONA

Informed of the state department comments, Miro said Monday night of his letter:

"I told the truth. I do not tell lies.

"I have never asked a second invasion. I have asked for hemispheric co-operation for joint military action."

Sources who claim to have studied the letter say it includes:

A detailed account of Miro's relations with the U.S. government—including President Kennedy—since the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion of 1961.

Charges the United States reneged on promises to act against Castro; promises including a second invasion.

Complaints that the United States has embarked on a course of coexistence toward the Soviet satellite in the Caribbean.

In general, a protest at lack of U.S. support for action against Castro.

The council still hasn't accepted Miro's resignation and has planned a formal meeting for tonight to decide its course.

Bond Theft Witness Believed Suicide

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—William George Dales, 56, who police believe was swept to his death over the Horseshoe Falls here Monday, was scheduled to appear in a Vancouver court Friday to testify at a hearing involving a $837,000 bond theft in 1959 from the St. Catharines' Trust Company he managed.

His wife reported him missing earlier Monday after he failed to return home from a drive to a service station.

Police said Dales, who had been in failing health, was to have flown to Vancouver to be a witness today at the assize court trial of David Wilson, 32, of Victoria, B.C., charged with possession of coupons of stolen government bonds.

Police in St. Catharines denied, however, that the missing man's trip to Vancouver was involved with the preliminary hearing. Officers said the trust company handles a large number of estates and that the Vancouver trip was to have been on probate business.

It is alleged the bonds were stolen from the St. Catherines office of the Premier Trust Company Feb. 1, 1959, when thieves using oxy-acetylene equipment looted vaults and safety deposit boxes.

Dales was a former member of the St. Catherines board of education.

His abandoned car was found near a parapet overlooking the falls, where tourists watched in horror as a man leaped into the roaring river.

It is impossible for police to drag the river below the 167-foot falls where millions of gallons of water every second crash down on to jagged rocks.

Blonde Makes Risky Swim Both Ways

MESSINA, Sicily (AP)—A 25-year-old strawberry blonde from Detroit today became the first person to swim the swirling, shark-infested waters of the Strait of Messina to Calabria and back.

Mary Margaret Revell said afterward she suffered such cramps in the cold waters that she took a more direct route than anticipated and that the change in plans helped her accomplish the feat which no man nor woman ever had done before. Numerous men have conquered the dreaded expanse of cold, racing waters in the past. But no swimmer ever had made a round trip.

Time was five hours, 28 minutes.

Miss Ravell swam without the usual heavy coating of grease. A quartet of skin-divers swam near her to fight off sharks. None was seen, however.

RAINS CONTINUE TO SOAK HAWAII; TWO FEARED DEAD

HONOLULU (AP) — Hundreds of Hawaiians are homeless and at least two persons missing as driving tropical rains continued today to drench the island chain, feeding rampaging mountain streams on Oahu and Kauai islands.

The weather bureau forecast offered little hope for a let-up in the rains that have hammered the islands almost steadily for a week.

Civil defence officials and police said Monday that damage—mostly to homes—would total more than $5,000,000.

The tiny island of Kauai, northernmost in the archipelago, was hardest hit. The windward section of Oahu suffered heavy damage to homes.

Kauai police said an estimated 400 persons were forced from their homes in the plantation community of Hanapepe, on the southern coast.

On Oahu, 18 inches of rain was dumped into Kahaluu Valley on the island's windward side in six hours Monday, the weather bureau said.

An army lieutenant-colonel and a sergeant major were lost and feared drowned in the mountains near Honolulu. They vanished when surging waters pulled their jeeps into an overflowing stream.

Caouette Denies Bribe Reports

OTTAWA (CP) — Deputy leader Real Caouette of the Social Credit party said today he does not believe any of his followers were offered financial rewards to support the new Liberal government.

He made the statement just before a caucus of the Quebec wing of his party, held in the Parliament Building.

Party leader Robert Thompson said Monday that he had heard some Social Credit MPs from Quebec had been offered "a rather handsome remuneration" to join the Liberal party.

Liberal National Director Keith Davey said he has no knowledge of any such offers by his party to Social Credit MPs.

Meanwhile the Quebec and western wings of the party are holding separate but crucial meetings today in an atmosphere charged by dissension.

Mr. Caouette and the 19 other Social Credit MPs from Quebec were planning a caucus in the Parliament Buildings this afternoon, while Mr. Thompson was to meet his western lieutenants in Red Deer, Alta., tonight and Wednesday.

Party officials said two caucuses are being held instead of one to save travel expenses and time. Mr. Thompson said he will not return to Ottawa until after a two-week holiday.

NEW SPEAKER?

Strong favorite to be named speaker in the new 26th Parliament is Alan MacNaughton, 59, Liberal member from Montreal, according to Ottawa sources. A lawyer, MacNaughton has represented the Mount Royal riding since 1949.

REQUESTS TOTAL $32,000

'Beggars' Besiege Sweep Winners

Adam Johnston still hasn't received the $150,000 he won three weeks ago in the Irish sweepstakes.

But already he has received begging letters asking for a total of $32,000 of his prize money.

Said his wife today: "I'm amazed at some of the requests people have made."

And in Vancouver another $150,000 prize-winner, Mrs. Edna Imler, said she wouldn't have bought the sweepstake ticket if she had known the trouble it would bring her.

Mrs. Imler said she and her husband have been plagued by hundreds of begging letters and telephone calls.

The letters received by Mr. Johnston, a 68-year-old Victoria auctioneer's assistant, range from one from a man who said he lost all his money playing the horses to a request from an Ontario woman for money to attend her son's graduation in British Columbia.

Most of the requests have come from either Vancouver or Quebec.

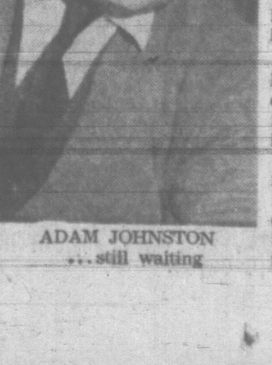
Said Mrs. Johston: "Victoria people haven't bothered us very much."

GENUINE

Many people write to say they need money because they are sick.

"We'd like to help," said Mrs. Johnston. "But how can we tell if the letters are genuine?"

The Johnstons have decided that if anyone is going to get a share of their money it will be their relatives. And later this year they may use part of their winnings to travel to eastern Canada and the United States.



ADAM JOHNSTON
. . . still waiting

Mr. Johnston won't discuss the requests. He was working at Lunds' Auctioneers when a Times reporter arrived this morning to ask him about them.

Mr. Johnston didn't even stop work. "No comment," was all he said.

The Vancouver winners took a week's holiday when they won. Now Mrs. Imler is thinking of going away again if the begging doesn't stop.

"These people don't want a little. They want a whole lot of money. If you kept on giving it away like that you'd have none left."

The demands have ranged from one by an elderly couple for money to buy a car to drive around in their old age to a call from a nurse for $700 to bring her son from Poland.

AUCKLAND—The New Zealand health department has issued a warning about the dangers of beer—not through drinking it but through getting in the way of exploding flagons.

New Zealanders have taken to buying beer in half-gallon flagons, rather than in quart or pint cans and bottles.

Business in these containers has increased rapidly. But the flagons are proving too weak in construction to withstand beer under pressure, especially when filled to the brim.

A number of people have been injured by flying glass fragments and the health department suggests that either stronger containers should be used or the containers should not be filled to the top.

WASHINGTON—Senator Stephen Young (Dem.—Ohio) suggested to the Senate Monday a way to get rid of some of the government's $55,000,000 stockpile of castor oil: "Administer it to some of those officers of the Eisenhower administration responsible for the stockpiling."

Young said a recent report showed about 214,000,000 pounds of castor oil held by the government and added "it dates from the Eisenhower administration." The stockpile, he said, is nearly 146,000,000 pounds beyond needs.

TORONTO—A 32-year-old philosopher who posed as a victim of fatal cancer told a luncheon audience Monday that people should not fritter away their time praying for a non-existent eternal life.

Dr. Peter A. Angeles, contending he expected to die of cancer in three months, urged his audience to live intensely in service to others, in creation and in suffering and the "end will be bliss."

But Dr. Angeles said later in a telephone interview from his home at London, Ont., that he does not have cancer and doesn't expect to die in the near future.

An assistant professor of philosophy at the University of Western Ontario, he said he used poetic licence to create a mood, using a technique similar to one last month when he posed as a 70-year-old professor addressing his students for the last time at a university lecture.

42-Hour Week Seen For City's Firemen

Vancouver firefighters' success in winning a 42-hour work week probably will be followed next year by a similar victory for Victoria firemen, an official has predicted.

"We in Victoria have always followed pretty well the pattern set on the Mainland in wages and hours," said Eric Simmons, of the city department, who also is president of the Briitsh Columbia Firefighters' Association.

The city force failed this year in its bid to have the 48-hour week reduced.

Edwin E. Pearlman, who acted for the city in negotiations due to the absence of city manager C. C. Wyatt on account of illness, said that "we have taken the position that Victoria should not be bound by Vancouver wage scales.

"Our firemen get more money than any other firemen in the Dominion of Canada except the Vancouver metropolitan area, where they get approximately $8 a month more.

"In 17 large industrial cities across the nation, where average wage rates for industry are higher than Victoria, firemen are paid $45 to $60 a month less. This applies to cities like Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Winnipeg.

"I believe our men are very well taken care of. They get $130 a month in fringe benefits on top of their salaries.

"As for following Vancouver—Mayor Rathie stated in a Vancouver newspaper only Saturday that his city was headed towards bankrutpcy. Is that what we want to follow?"

If the work-week is reduced next year, Mr. Simmons contended that the increase would involve 12 additional men, at an initial cost of approximafely $40,000.

. . . DIEFENBAKER

reporter. "Your assumption was not well-founded."

Could Mr. Diefenbaker then indicate just when the changeover would take place?

"No. I have nothing to indicate until I have seen the governor-general."

Mr. Diefenbaker also said, as he left the cabinet meeting, that the next cabinet meeting would be held Thursday morning, and not Wednesday afternoon as he had earlier indicated.

'I'm Not Sure'

He was asked if the Thursday cabinet meeting would be the final one. His reply was that he was "not sure, I can't say definitely."

"Under ordinary circumstances one might anticipate that it will be the last," he added. "But there would be the possibility of a later one."

Did this mean he was following "different mechanics" than had been followed in the past in such changeovers?

"No," he said firmly.

Would Mr. Diefenbaker be seeing the governor-general only once?

Mr. Diefenbaker answered that he would have to discuss matters of "constitutional propriety" with his excellency and might need to see the governor-general a second time.

These new developments changed earlier expectations that the prime minister would simply see the governor-general on Wednesday, resign, and then take up the job as opposition leader while the governor-general called on Mr. Pearson to form a new government the same day.

'Taking His Time'

The Diefenbaker statements and comments of today were not taken by observers to mean that he might be attempting to hold on to office.

The consensus was that he was simply "taking his time" in engineering the changeover in an easy, slow manner, with the Liberals doing nothing to disturb any of the dignified procedures involved.

But it now appeared that the big switch would not come until Friday, and possibly not until Monday.

Mr. Myhill-Jones earlier testified the minister told him he would look into the matter and later phoned back to say Mr. Gillespie would be hearing frome someone about it. This was followed by payment of the mortgage by Mr. Thornton.

Mr. Gaglardi denied telling Mr. Thornton to do it.

Yard Stages 'Peace' Raids

LONDON (CP)—Scotland Yard made pre-dawn raids today in its campaign to crack the "Spies For Peace" ring for betraying some of Britain's nuclear survival secrets.

Swinging into action after a wild, fist-throwing ban-the-bomb rally, agents of the special branch dealing with security offences swooped on houses in search of a typewriter used to draw up pamphlets first distributed during the weekend peace march on London. The pamphlets disclosed secret plans for dispersal of government offices in the event of a nuclear attack.

There was no immediate word on what if anything the raiders found.

Canada Protests U.S. Move To Cut Tourist Spending

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—Canadian authorities have protested a United States government proposal which would impose further restrictions on U.S. tourists spending in Canada and other countries, it was learned today.

The latest proposal is to withdraw the duty-free allowance on tourist goods which do not accompany the traveller on his return to the U.S.

The treasury department has sent a confidential message to the congressional ways and means committee asking for a two-year extension on the existing ceiling of $100 worth of tourist goods which can be brought back duty-free.

In addition, the department asked for legislation to reduce the duty-free privilege to goods which accompany the tourist and not to goods which he may buy on his travels and have shipped to his home later.

Department officials said the "ship later" privilege resulted in many abuses.

U.S. tourists visiting one country would order goods in another country and have them shipped to the U.S., claiming the $100 duty-free entry which can be exercised every 31 days on trips of 48 hours or more.

WOULD HURT SHOPS

Canadian authorities, informed of the department's proposal, told the U.S. government that such a restriction would hurt a lot of Canadian shops which cater to the U.S. tourist.

One Canadian official said it would be difficult to estimate how much Canadian business would be lost by such a restriction but it might be substantial in some cases.

The present U.S. duty-free entry of tourist goods was cut from a maximum of $500 to $100 two years ago as part of the Kennedy administration drive to reduce the flow of U.S. dollars and gold abroad.

Meanwhile, the U.S. customs bureau decided to defer action for six months on a proposal to reduce duty-free entry of gift parcels to $1 from $10. This proposed reduction also met with Canadian government opposition.

Customs Commissioner Philip Nichols Jr. said a lot of parcels are falsely labelled as gifts to avoid duty payments.

Trains Open New World Of Pleasure

By LOTTA DEMPSEY

MAD AT THE speed-mad age?

Would you like to loaf back in bedroom-slipper comfort, wining and dining, making friends without the need to influence anybody, and seeing the map of Canada unfold in glorious color outside your picture window?

Then you are—or you have possibilities of becoming—a travel-by-rail buff.

Train journeys are an "in" thing again; or so I gather from the numbers of businessmen, families, and women, old and young, with whom I shared a recent transcontinental adventure from Toronto to Vancouver.

Slice the Miles

Not that these diesel-engined, streamlined, cross-country caravans are any slouches in slicing through miles. But if you prefer forest and prairie, town and city centre, roaring river and soaring mountain to the upper crust of clouds a la jet, you're going to measure your travels by a more leisurely yardstick than the man with the built-in flight plan.

And now the railroads have made a real breakthrough in catering to the current predilection to the package deal.

At what would have been considered, not long ago, as wholesale prices, you can purchase your all-inclusive travel plan ticket from here to there and back again, with all meals and gratuities included.

No Palms Out

I even wangled breakfast in bed, although this lazy-woman's courtesy is not listed on the billet tout compris.

Lotta Dempsey, well-known Toronto Daily Star columnist

It just goes to show how long-suffering dining-car stewards can be, in implementing the new service-with-a-smile and no palm extended program of all hands aboard.

After booking first-class, I wished I'd saved the money. Tourist has roomettes which appeared quite as comfortable, just as air-conditioned and temperature-controlled.

Menus Stolid

(First-class had its own lounge car, but everyone moved easily back and forth from one to the other. As always seems to be the case aboard ship, the tourist lounge was much livelier and more fun. Also, the meal schedule for tourist is a little less lavish, but in many cases the items seemed more satisfactory for days when a journey back and forth to the dining car is the major exercise.)

There are still some snarls to be untangled as the new plan to keep customers happy unrolls along the snaking ribbons of steel across this broad domain. First, the food department. The fine old tradition of leisurely dining, fresh table cloth for every new setting, heavy silver and cheerful tray-carrying waiters persists. But the menus are stolid and unimaginative by present day standards—both in print and actuality.*

The CNR, at least—for this was my line of route—could well take cognizance of menus at their own hotels like the Macdonald and the Chateau Laurier, where the words "crisp," "new," "garnished," "fresh," "fluffy," "nippy," tempt the contemplative reader, and follow through in fact of preparation. More frozen foods and fresh fruits could be used to advantage.

Then, it seems to this long-time train devotee, the two companies threading Canada with their lines might get heads together instead of so often appearing to be sparring for custom.

Whether they like it or not, the CNR and the CPR are not nearly so much involved in a tug-of-war for the travelling public, as they are in persuading the air-minded or automobile-conditioned tourist to try taking to the rails.

So enjoyable and informative had been the trip west by CNR, this traveller attempted to return from Vancouver via CPR, in order to get the complete picture of a view from both our proud national routes.

Not only would this have involved a considerable added expense; but dealings with offices of each there was a marked, if subconscious, attempt to down-grade the other.

I think you boys are going to have to pull together, or the diesel may not whistle anymore.

Ticket Snarl-Up

Then I attempted to return by plane. Because of some sort of reissue of ticket at one point of call (apparently necessitated simply because of a change of accommodation for one night aboard) it was impossible to do this without sending the ticket back to the point at which this simple change had been made.

Otherwise, my enjoyment of the journey started with that lovely call of "All Aboard," lots and lots of luggage tucked away, and the slow pulling out of Union Station as I wended toward the lounge car to watch my country's great and fabulous world go by.

*We're already acting on ways to vary the menus. You'll see next trip.

Thank you, Lotta!

50 TIMES AS POWERFUL AS HIROSHIMA BOMB

Devastating Strike Role for RCAF?

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF supersonic CF-104 low-level jet bomber in Europe will carry a one-megaton bomb, authorities here say.

A one-megaton bomb, equivalent to 1,000,000 tons of TNT, is fifty times as powerful as the bomb which destroyed Hiroshima in 1945.

The RCAF air division in Europe, with eight squadrons of 18 CF-104s each, would thus have the power to destroy 144 cities at one blow — assuming cities were the targets and all 144 planes got through to their targets in one strike.

Authorities say such an example is hypothetical because CF-104 targets would be military installations such as missile bases and not population centres. In any event, the RCAF CF-104s, about 20 per cent of the NATO tactical nuclear force in Europe, were meant to be primarily a war deterrent.

The CF-104 has a radius of action of some 500 miles, meaning that it could not hit Russia from its European bases.

The problem posed by the massive strike capability of the air division is staring a Liberal government in the face because a NATO ministerial meeting on control of nuclear weapons will be held here May 22-24.

The Liberals never did like the CF-104 program. However, Liberal Leader Pearson has said Canada should honor its nuclear commitments and, as Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in the Commons Jan. 25, the CF-104 is a nuclear commitment.

Paul Hellyer, MP for Toronto Trinity and Liberal defence critic, said in the Commons March 28, 1961, of the CF-104: "This is a rough engine being installed in a poor aircraft to carry out a questionable role to which we should not have committed ourselves in the first place."

Mr. Diefenbaker said in January that Canada at the May NATO meeting would seek a "clarification" of the CF-104's role.

Meanwhile, Mr. Pearson and Mr. Hellyer have said Canada should put more emphasis on strengthening conventional forces in Europe.

Mr. Pearson has left no doubt he would rather see this done than the nuclear arming of the CF-104.

"The Canadian government should support the strengthening of NATO conventional forces so that undue reliance would not have to be placed on nuclear tactical weapons like the CF-104 for defence against every attack," he said Jan. 12.

60 CHARGED FOR HAVING U.S. LIQUOR

SURREY, B.C. (CP)—Charges have been laid against approximately 60 persons for having undeclared United States liquor in their cars, the RCMP said Monday.

A police spokesman said that road blocks, thrown up in this municipality between Vancouver and the U.S. border, resulted in the seizure of about 300 bottles of U.S. beer and liquor. The roadblocks were in effect from 6 p.m. Friday to noon Monday.

Police said they were checking the cars for routine driving and mechanical infractions.

In all, about 3,000 vehicles were checked. Most of them were returning from Easter holidays in the U.S.

High Schools Will Offer New Vocational Training

VANCOUVER (CP) —British Columbia high schools will soon offer more vocational training, the deputy minister of education said Monday.

Courses similar to those of provincial vocational schools will be available to students in grades 11 and 12, J. F. K. English told the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

They will be taught in conjunction with general courses, with the hope of remaking the old general program that did not equip students for jobs, he said.

But the new secondary-school courses should not be defined as trades training or in the narrow sense to mean "industrial vocation."

The term vocational "might be used to describe any program of training for any one of the various callings pursued in modern society," said Mr. English.

DIFFER IN SIZE

The new programs will vary in scope depending on the size of the school.

In larger schools, he said, students will be able to concentrate on certain areas of study, allowing them to go straight into apprenticeships or jobs or to the provincial vocational schools for further training.

"In all secondary schools the vocational program will include recognized courses in English, social studies, mathematics, science, physical education and health.

"I emphasize that at the end of this two-year period the student will have reached approximately the same level of training that the post-high school or adult student will have attained at a provincial vocational school, which offers a relatively short-term concentrated course.

GENERAL PROGRAM TOO

"For example, a student in automotive mechanics in a secondary school will require two years to complete the course and in addition carry general educational subjects.

"The adult student, on the other hand, will cover the automotive course in six to eight months but he will not have the benefit of an accompanying general educational program."

In smaller secondary schools there will not be enough students to offer specialized training in different fields.

"The program in these schools must be general in a number of skills, with perhaps some bias in the vocational field appropriate to the district."

Mr. English said the goal of the education department is to cut down on high school dropouts in B.C. to ensure that every student has some academic or vocational training.

Hearing Tonight

Nine rezoning applications, one involving a request for permission to erect a seminary for student nuns at the northern corner of Arbutus and Queenswood Drive, will be considered by Saanich council at a public hearing at 7:30 tonight.

The Order of the Sisters of St. Anne is the applicant seeking permission to establish a "Hall of Studies" for nuns taking courses at Victoria College. The proposed 15-acre site is in a single family zone.

Other applicants include the Good Shepherd Animal Shelter which wants the rezoning of 28 acres of property on West Saanich Road for eventual use as a home for animals.

Mattick's Farm Market, Cordova Bay Road, will also ask for rezoning to permit expansion of the present golf course and recreational facilities.

Other bylaws involve the rezoning of three lots on the south side of Roderick Street for retail comercial use; to in the area of Douglas, Tol- in the area of oDuglas, Tolmie, Maple and Short Streets, and to align adjoining residential area boundaries.

'Mystery Vessel' Fishing Trawler

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — The admiral in charge of rescue operations the first three days after the nuclear submarine Thresher sank in the Atlantic with 129 men aboard testified today he had formed an opinion as to the cause of sinking. But he added "it is nothing I care to state in open session."

Rear-Admiral Lawson P. Ramage was the day's first witness before a navy court of inquiry attempting to find the cause of the disaster.

Ramage is deputy commander of the Atlantic fleet submarine force.

He told the court neither he nor other top officers in the search and rescue phase was aware until two days later Thresher had radioed information about a "minor difficulty."

Ramage said he learned of Thresher's radio message on April 12 after the navigator of the rescue ship Skylark was transferred to the admiral's ship to be brought ashore to testify.

Navigator Lieut. James C. Watson earlier told the court the last clear message from Thresher was: "Experiencing minor difficulty. Have positive up angle. Attempting to blow."

Ramage also said a strange vessel later identified as a Norwegian fishing trawler was the only ship in the search area other than navy craft. He said the fisherman flew a Norwegian flag, was just passing the area and had no bearing on the sinking or the search.

NOTHING CHANGED

Ramage said that even if he had learned about Thresher's last message it could not have changed search and rescue plans that went into immediate effect.

"The initial evaluation, however, would have been made sooner," he said.

Ramage said the submarine Sea Wolf which was in the vicinity picked up an "electronic emission" after the sinking but was not able to record it again.

Asked if this could have meant there was life on the sunken submarine, Ramage replied: "None of the signals equated with human personnel."

He added there were any number of noise sources underwater.

No Miracles

A NEW CHAPTER IN Canada's history opens with the arrival of the Pearson government. The high expectations aroused by the Prime Minister himself and the able men around him cannot disguise the fact that the new chapter will be difficult. We need expect no miracles.

Seldom has any new Canadian government faced the sort of problems now immediately ahead of Mr. Pearson. They are many-sided, complex and daunting.

To begin with, the national budget is in heavy deficit and has been, without interruption, since 1957. Almost unbelievably, Parliament has not examined public expenditures — one of its primary functions—for a full year. The former government financed by bulk appropriations which were to be examined in detail later on but, as it turned out, were never examined. The Pearson government must first find out precisely where the nation's finances stand and then frame a new budget for early introduction.

Secondly, it must prepare for a session of Parliament in mid-May and meanwhile draft its legislative program.

Simultaneously it must lay down Canadian trade policy at a meeting of Commonwealth finance ministers in London next month and, three days later, at a vital meeting of GATT in Geneva. It must also meet its NATO allies at Ottawa to consider the future military plans of the alliance, including the installation of nuclear weapons in Canadian forces at home and abroad.

During this period Mr. Pearson hopes to confer personally with the British government in London and with President Kennedy in Washington or Ottawa to end, without delay, the serious frictions recently dividing the three English-speaking nations of the North Atlantic.

Dozens of other lesser problems press for early answers, among them the threatened bankruptcy of the unemployment insurance fund and the future of the Columbia River treaty.

All these things considered, the new government cannot expect and should not try to do everything at once. The public undoubtedly will wish it to have time for thought and the three opposition parties, now in a reasonable state of mind after the excitement of the election, apparently intend to co-operate in the conduct of public business.

The whole course of national policy is about to change with the change of personalities in the cabinet chamber but the results are quite incalculable.

All we know for sure now is that the nation must be prepared to accept important, perhaps in some directions, very painful decisions, possibly including tax increases. After the financial debauch of the last six years a price will have to be paid. In asking the nation to pay it by one means or another the Pearson government need not anticipate popularity and, if the job is to be properly done, should not seek it.

The Prime Minister said in the recent campaign that, if he came to office, he intended to govern as if he could count on no more than four years of power and would not worry about the next election. If he is wise, he will stick to that course, do what he knows to be necessary for the nation's welfare and let the political chips fall where they may.

The attempt by the former government to be all things to all men at all times has ended in much worse than an electoral disaster. It has produced such a state of confusion, postponement and paralysis in national affairs that only a very different sort of approach to this vast accumulation of unsolved problems can possibly serve the people's true interests now.

Under these circumstances the people should be wary of excessive expectations. They have begun an era of deep change but its end cannot be foreseen.

Now that he has accepted the supreme responsibility of government, all sensible citizens, whether they voted for him or not, will hope for Mr. Pearson's success since it involves all of them. No one, however powerful or humble, can escape the cataract of events which will soon flow from Ottawa.

New Spark for Old Tories

TO BRITISH CONSERVATIVES the byelection news of recent weeks has been almost all bad. Seats have been lost and, in a number of instances, Liberals have succeeded Conservatives as runners-up when Labor has won.

The political problems confronting the party have been emphasized by failure of the country to gain entry into the European Common Market and by a division within Conservative ranks over the course the government pursued.

Against this background, the reported new enthusiasm of Conservative Members of Parliament for their future prospects comes as a surprise. Yet so competent an observer as Mr. Peter Lyne writes in The Christian Science Monitor that the Conservatives were jaunty as they left a pre-Easter meeting at which Prime Minister Harold Macmillan informed them he would lead the party into the next election.

He further told them that Conservatives had, according to an opinion poll, won back a considerable measure of the public support it had lost to the Labor Party.

Support this with the comment of Sir Winston Churchill who, in his message of thanks for the honorary American citizenship conferred upon him, said: "I reject the view that Britain and the Commonwealth should now be relegated to a tame and minor role in the world. Our past is the key to our future, which I firmly trust and believe will be no less fertile and glorious." The great Conservative gives courage to his followers and successors and repudiates the suggestion imputed to Mr. Harold Wilson that England must content herself with second-class status in some fields.

There are, however, some of the younger Conservatives who would have preferred to see Mr. Macmillan step down and make way for new leadership in the next appeal to the people.

But Sir Winston, with a phrase or two, and Mr. Macmillan with a new show of vitality, have buoyed up flagging party hopes.

It will be some time before Britons go to the polls in a general election. By that time, says Mr. Macmillan, they will support the Conservatives because Conservative policies would be seen to fit the mid-1960s.

The Prime Minister may or may not be right. In his most recent statement, he does not sound like a man who has come to the end of the line.

Hazard of Just Talking

THOUGHTFUL CALIFORNIANS impressed like most other residents of this continent by their state's surging growth, have taken a short time-out to see how native culture is keeping pace with the mushrooming population.

This month 500 of them prominent in the arts met in Los Angeles to discuss the subject in detail. They concerned themselves with the spread of popular support for the arts in the state, with the question of government subsidy, with the development of excellence among artists—architects, musicians, actors, dancers, painters, makers of motion pictures, teachers of the arts and planners of cities—and with other phases of the California culture.

What may emerge from this look into the evolution of various arts in the state may become evident in the future. It is interesting and gratifying, however, to note that Californians of distinction are stimulating broader appreciation of culture.

And it may be of significance in Victoria and in other cities conscious of this important phase of their development that the Californians, looking for progress, talked about the dangers of just talking.

Different Cause, Same Danger

VANCOUVER ISLAND WILL not face, this summer, the same danger from forest fires expected in Washington where the gale of last October blew down billions of board feet of timber which will become tinder as the warm weather dries out the woods.

But the Island will have a hazard of its own. Snowfall during the winter was light. The covering on the hills, where it has not yet disappeared, is thin. In consequence there will be insufficient moisture in the forest to provide a safe humidity. That means that the danger of fire will come earlier to our forests and make special demands for caution by picnic parties, hikers and others who go into the woods for recreation or for work.

The dangers here and in Washington spring from different causes. They nevertheless could produce the same results, flaming timberlands which, in our part of the world, represent about one dollar bill for every two produced in British Columbia.

FROM PARIS

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Political Vacuum in the Second Nation

REPORTING a vacuum is neither easy nor customary; yet it is an important matter when there is something very like a political vacuum in the second nation of the Western Alliance. The fault is not the British Government's. With real courage, although pretty late in the day, Prime Minister Macmillan tried to lead Britain into Europe. If the effort to enter the Common Market had not been blocked, this country would soon have acquired a new sense of purpose and direction.

Alsop

The fault is not the want of able leaders, either. The younger generation of Conservative politicians are men of impressive ability, as was most recently demonstrated by the exceptionally astute budget presented by the new Chancellor of the Exchequer, Reginald Maudling. As for the Labor party, the extreme intelligence of Harold Wilson is beyond question, however mysterious his basic aims may remain.

But spend close to a fortnight asking scores of leading Englishmen the simple question, "Where do you go from here?" The sum of the answers is an almost total lack of a present sense of purpose and direction. There is no closer conception of the nature of Britain's world-role now. There are not even any very clear ideas about what Britain's world-role ought to be.

On the extreme right, of course, there are a few who want Britain to go back into the empire-business, just as there are the neutralists and the "let's do business with Moscow" types on the extreme left. But these minorities can be ignored as completely unrepresentative, except that it's still to be seen how much his left-wing supporters will influence the ideas of Harold Wilson.

The great mass of men in the middle, in both of the major parties, have meanwhile been left at a loss by the great and painful changes in Britain's national situation, caused by two World Wars in which Britain played so courageous a part.

The position here, in short, is just the contrary of the situation in France, where the French world-role begins to be conceived in exaggerated, almost glory-drunken terms.

It is hard to be precise about such problems, but that does not make the problems any less serious. For one leading nation of the West to have highly exaggerated ideas about where it is going, and for another leading nation to have no ideas at all on this point, can prove to be exceedingly damaging and dangerous.

It must be added that in a measure, at any rate, the fault lies in Washington. Nothing in the Western Alliance can fall into place until the American policy-makers recognize and accept the consequences of the resurgence of Europe.

In this respect, President Kennedy and his advisors have gone much further than President Eisenhower did. Yet a great deal of the old governess-attitude towards Europe still survives, especially in the area of defence policy. That survival, in turn, gave rise to the fears that the British, with their special relationship to the Americans, would enter Europe only as an American Trojan horse.

In London, the search for a world-role, and in Washington the search for a modernized, more stable form of the Western Alliance, will both fail unless the European resurgence is squarely faced, together with all its implications. In this respect, the Anglo-Saxon powers, as Gen. de Gaulle is fond of calling us, ought to be moving forward together.

Such an approach will not be easy. It demands, above all, very difficult decisions about nuclear policy which the British are particularly reluctant to take, if one may judge by their schizophrenic handling of the NATO multilateral force idea.

But if the Americans and British take this kind of approach to Europe, Gen. de Gaulle will hardly be able to convince the other Europeans that he is the sole guarantee of their independence. A reformed but no less strong Western Alliance will gradually take shape, and Britain will find her role again within this modernized framework.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

Hat Creek Coal Power

It was reported in the press on March 21 that during discussion on power affairs the Hon. Ray Williston, minister of lands and forests made the suggestion that I had provided the energy cost estimates which Mr. Harding had just quoted as prevailing on Peace River and Columbia River power.

Mr. Williston did quote me as being opposed to the Columbia River Treaty, which is quite true.

I should like to point out to you that I have furnished no report nor figures on Columbia River and Peace River power costs to Mr. Harding.

Furthermore, the results of the many studies I have made of the Columbia River Treaty have invariably been first of all submitted to the minister and departments concerned at Victoria and Ottawa before being presented elsewhere, and I have constantly solicited corrections and assistance should I have made any errors.

I have studiously endeavored to keep my studies of the treaty, and my efforts to give Canadians an understanding of it, purely on an economic and engineering basis with complete separation from the political field.

I did write Mr. Williston about a year ago and pointed out that the next cheapest source of power development in B.C. would be from the Hat Creek coal field near Lillooet. Since then Professor Muir's article has appeared in the proceedings of the Engineering Institute of Canada and there he shows that power from Hat Creek could be brought to Vancouver for about 3½ mills and this could be in relatively small blocks, say 500,000 KW more or less.

It has to be remembered that the B.C. Hydro load is approximately 1,200,000 KW and that generating capacity now installed amounts to in excess of 1,800,000 KW and a further 300,000 of steam plant is being built in England for Burrard.

These units should be installed in the next two or three years and will bring up the generating capacity of the system to approximately 2,100,000 KW.

Should the load double by 1973 or amount to 2,400,000 KW, this will require a plant capacity of say 2,700,000 KW or if the diesel plants of the system are shut down, then say 2,800,000 KW. This means that the system requires about 700,000 of plant capacity in excess of that now existing and contracted for, by 1973.

To bring this in from Hat Creek might require an expenditure of $110,000,000, including transmission costs.

Under these conditions Hat Creek would be the base load plant having the cheapest source of power and Burrard would share some peaking with hydro plants.

Some time during this period the construction of the Peace River project would become economic on account of the much larger annual load increments that, would then be expected to have developed. It should be suspended till then.

The delay in the construction of Peace River would reduce the very large accumulating fixed charges on Peace River costs (say $500,000,000) during the time before it would be needed to carry major load.

Robbing the Bald Eagle

Politics can get us sorely confused. Science can do the same.

Believing there are many naturalists who are confused and even offended by the picture and the accompanying article of the Bald Eagle's nest being "robbed" may I please be allowed to express a view which is possibly held by others, namely—that it is a mistake to publish such details of an individual university biology graduate student project.

Naturalists are not necessarily scientists and vice versa.

This type of publicity for an earnest, hard-working biology student cannot "educate" the public in the normal requirements of research in the field of zoology or any other science from which in the final analysis they and the world may benefit.

The public who have been told not to disturb nesting birds; told the Bald Eagle population is on the decrease; told the bird is zealously protected—told these things by trusted authorities—cannot be expected to understand, analyze and assimilate at one gulp what is given them in a few lines of explanation and one picture depicting the nest which was "robbed" of its three eggs. (According to Alexander Sprunt they usually lay two only.)

This is hardly conducive to good feeling and support from the sincere naturalists who are not specialists in zoology. Many respected naturalists have spent years in the field and devoted much study to aspects of nature which render their findings valuable to the public weal.

The political confusions may soon abate. We hope the same for the disquiet brought about by the "robbing" of the nest of the Bald Eagle.

I would like to thank you for the delightful series of essays which were published at intervals during last month, "O Ye Jigs and Juleps" by Virginia Cary Hudson.

What's In a Name?

This is to complain of some of the D.R.O.s and polling clerks.

I possess a name that has been in our family for some generations.

Remembering my experience of last federal voting day, I pronounced my name clearly and distinctly about five times. And yet, instead of the courtesy of having my name pronounced correctly, one woman passed the inane remark that she had always pronounced it differently. Was she God—or didn't she know that intelligent people might recognize that her pronunciation wasn't the only one in the world.

No More Sewage in Gorge

May I add my voice to that of F. T. Worth with regard to the proposal to empty sewage into the Gorge instead of building a pipe to the sea.

I was away when the hearing took place but I understand the dangers in such a scheme were pointed out. Apart from the obvious ones of spoiling a beauty spot there is the danger of disease, hepatitis for one thing.

When I ask people about it they say "surely they are not going ahead with this scheme?" No one can believe that Saanich Council could do this. Yet I understand because people had not protested too much when it was first muted they thought no one minded. Of course we mind. We just can't conceive of such a scheme ever getting passed.

CANTERBURY:

Red Dean's Farewell

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN

IT WAS an ordinary sermon at Evensong in a great English cathedral. The feast was Palm Sunday. The text was from the Book of Revelation that tells of the war against the Lamb and the power of love over the forces of evil.

It was done in the gentle, civilized, rather donnish manner of the Church of England. Yet this sermon was the last to be given in office by a man who was for years the most controversial in the country, the Very Reverend Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, better known as the "Red Dean."

The Dean quite simply believes that God had given him a special platform from which to preach the goodness and beauty of Communism. He believed even that Stalin was a great and good man. He said again and again that men had a better chance of the good life under Communism than in the West.

He welcomed the Chinese revolution with joy. He took a personal pride in the achievements of Communism and he was sure that people disagreed with him because they had not been to see for themselves and therefore could not know as he knew.

Familiar Figure

He was convinced that the Americans had used germ warfare in Korea. He was silent over Hungary. He was a familiar figure in Communist capitals, in his eighteenth-century black gaiters, frock coat and pectoral cross. In private they thought him a little dotty and excused him as a Christian gentleman. He got 75 lines in the Soviet Encyclopaedia. Christ got nine.

The son of a rich Midland industrialist, he worked in the slums and was a Socialist. The Dean of Canterbury is appointed by the Crown which means he is picked by the prime minister. He was chosen by the first Socialist prime minister, Ramsay Macdonald, first as Dean of Manchester, an industrial diocese with a cathedral as sooty as any factory, and then by the same man he was preferred to Canterbury.

Dean of Canterbury is one of the great offices of the church, well paid and nobly housed in the ancient precinct of the cathedral. The cathedral is the mother church of the Anglican communion and its Dean plays a prominent part, of right, at the coronation of the sovereign and at the enthronement of new primates of all England.

He is in charge of the cathedral, of its fabric and services. With these the Archbishop cannot interfere. Legally, the Dean is the descendant of the pre-Reformation Benedictine cathedral priors of Canterbury.

Then, as now, the Archbishop was usually away on business of state or church. Indeed the Archbishop's palace is in London. There is no retiring age for the Dean and he has an absolute security of tenure.

Melancholy Setter

Today, at 89, the Dean is an arresting figure. He is tall and straight. He is bald, and the top of his head rises like a cupola above long ringlets of white hair that fall almost to his shoulder. He has a long, heavy face, like that of a melancholy setter. He has a parsonical voice and an ecclesiastical manner.

Like many other clergymen with radical tastes, he is a keen ritualist and is known as an expert on the services of the Anglican church. He has done much for the cathedral. He wears gorgeous vestments. He sports the most splendid pectoral cross in England. He only becomes unconventional when he talks politics—which is a great deal of the time.

Abroad, where the niceties of the established church are unknown, he was often mistaken for the Archbishop, which embarrassed everyone but him. He has served under four Archbishops. The first, Dr. Temple, a Socialist, was his friend. The third, Dr. (now Lord) Fisher, a witty and conventional man, was cold and correct with him, and once said he was a "nuisance to be endured with such patience as we can command."

Indeed it is the long-suffering tolerance of the Church of England that comes most clearly out of this strange career.

The Dean has been a vain, silly, innocent man. He courted publicity. He pursued eccentricity. He seemed incapable of changing his mind. He saw what he wanted and no more. He was brave and stubborn.

Even Communism has gone on and left him behind still somewhere in the 30s. He has not done any real damage. He is retiring next month to live still in Canterbury and to write his memoirs—inevitably in several volumes.

"IF THAT MAN AT THE NURSERY FOUND SOME SHOES AN' SOCKS BY HIS FISHPOND, HE'D SAVE 'EM, WOULDN'T HE?"

From Our Files

April 16, 1903 — Toronto: Sir Oliver Mowat, Lieut.-Gov. of Ontario, passed peacefully away at 9:54 this morning.

April 16, 1923 — London: Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer said today Briton's corporation tax and income tax would be reduced.

April 16, 1943 — Toronto: Four escapees from Ontario Reformatory today bound and gagged a farmer and continued their flight for freedom.

Gerald Waring ...REPORTING

OTTAWA—In response to a question ("occupation?"), Prime Minister Sir John A. Macdonald once described himself with wry humor as a cabinetmaker.

It would be droll if he had written this on his income tax form, but fortunately for everybody in those halcyon days they didn't have income taxes.

However, nostalgia aside, the job of cabinetmaking is perhaps the most important single task that a political leader newly elected to office will face during his entire term of office. There will be other problems of great public importance, but the cabinet problem is basic to all. The competence of the government in dealing with public problems, and indeed the political survival of the government, depend very greatly on the skill, the understanding, and the care of the political cabinet-maker.

Lester Pearson's hitherto untried abilities in this all-important area of prime ministerial concern are now being exercised. What are his problems?

* * *

First—always first—there is Quebec. Ideally the federal cabinet should be a cement to strengthen the Anglo-French union that formed Canada. Quebec must have adequate numerical representation, it must have an adequate share of the important and prestigious portfolios, and the Quebec ministers should include men highly regarded in their province, established leaders with deep understanding of their people's hopes and aspirations and the breadth of vision to work for the realization of Quebec's vital interests within the imperfect constitutional framework of the Canadian nation.

That's a tall order, but it's not all. One among these French-Canadians should be a man of the highest stature. When a French-Canadian is prime minister this need is automatically filled; when an Anglo-Canadian is prime minister the task is to find a Quebec lieutenant, actually a deputy prime minister.

* * *

Prime Minister Diefenbaker failed in this search, as indeed he failed generally in his task of using the cabinet as cement against the strains on Confederation. Mr. Pearson has Lionel Chevrier, largely by legacy but buttressed by loyalty and 47 Quebec seats. It is hard to argue with electoral success. But he also has Guy Favreau, an outstanding political newcomer who is being eyed as Chevrier's eventual successor, a man who might prove another Ernest Lapointe or Louis St. Laurent.

* * *

Aside from Quebec, the cabinetmaker's greatest problem is providing for the traditional ellocation of cabinet posts on geographic, ethnic and religious bases while at the same time making full use of the best mental and administrative abilities among his followers.

Except that the Liberals have no MPs from Saskatchewan, the problem is minimized by the extraordinary high quality of the Liberal representation in the new Commons.

Too often in the past dough-heads have been appointed to cabinet merely because they came from the right province or went to the right church.

I'm against dough-heads in the cabinet, no matter what the excuse. I hope Mike Pearson is too.

How to Endure Holidays

MACUTO, Venezuela (UPI) — Being invited on a junket to this Caribbean resort has given me an opportunity to do some work on a book I've been thinking of writing.

West

It is tentatively titled "Don't Let Vacations Spoil Your Fun" and the chapter I'm working on now is about trips to the beach.

The book will be designed to appeal to the great mass of Americans who do not enjoy vacations and would rather spend the time at the office except that they feel they should get away for a while. For such persons, vacations at the beach are particularly trying. I have been using much of my time here studying ways that will make a beach vacation endurable, if not enjoyable.

With the U.S. summer tourist season about to begin, I thought it might be helpful if I listed at this time some of the results of my research. Here are seven easy rules for survival at the beach:

1. On your first day at the beach sprawl out on the sand for several hours and get yourself a real lulu of a sunburn. This may be painful but the benefits make the suffering worth while. Once you have a sunburn you have a valid excuse for avoiding the griddle and you spend the rest of the time taking your leisure in the shade of a tall blonde, or something like that.

2. On occasions when you feel duty bound to immerse yourself in the surf, go down to the water's edge and stand for a few minutes squinting at the horizon as though you are watching something. Then turn to the bather nearest you and say "Isn't that a shark out there?" This will immediately clear the area and you will be able to have a peaceful, solitary swim.

3. Never go near the beach unless you take along an air pistol that can be concealed under a towel. It is to be used for surreptitiously shooting down beach balls that will be landing in your vicinity, overturning the thermos bottle and knocking sand over the sandwiches.

Should any of the beach ball owners catch you in the act of firing the pistol, explain to them that anti-aircraft is internationally recognized as a defensive weapon and that you are operating under a precedent established in Cuba. If they get nasty tell them to take it up with Castro.

4. Trade in your sun glasses for a pair of tinted goggles that completely cover the eyes. They will enable you to ogle the girls in the bikinis while pretending to be taking a nap.

5. If you observe the cocktail hours, do not set the suntan lotion near the GCB bottle.

6. If you value your slumber, pay no attention to reports that the sound of the surf will lull you to sleep.

7. If possible, when driving to the beach get lost.

Ruthless Surgery Pays Off

Examine gladiolus corms carefully before planting, cutting off any diseased portion no matter how small it may be.

Jack

Small high crowned corms give better flower spikes than large flat corms, although the latter may be "improved" by cutting vertically so that one or two growth buds and part of the root base are included in each piece.

Cut surfaces will dry naturally if given time, but for immediate planting the cuts should be dusted with fine sulphur or charcoal dust.

Depth to plant depends on the size of the corms, varying from five inches deep for the larger ones to one inch deep for cormels. In light soils the depth can be increased a little to give more support to the flower spikes.

Pre-planting dips are favored for disease and pest control. Lysol is a fungicide which may be used at the rate of one teaspoonful to one quart of water or one tablespoonful to one gallon. It is not wise to increase the strength since lysol is damaging to human skin.

Dipping time is from three to six hours, although corms having no roots or top growth showing can safely be left over night.

For thrip control add four teaspoonsful of DDT 50 per cent wettable powder to each gallon of water. This makes a combined fungicide-insecticide.

Corms should be planted while still wet from the dip. If planting is interrupted, the dipped corms should be washed off and spread to dry. Redipping is necessary when the work continues.

Gladiolus flowers may be had over a much longer period by planting a few corms at weekly to 10-day intervals from now until the end of May.

Esquimalt Host To Municipal Representatives

Representatives of municipalities from throughout Vancouver Island will meet May 30 at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

The annual meeting, usually attended by about 50 persons, will discuss problems of mutual interest. It will be a one-day affair.

The conference is always held before the annual meeting of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, scheduled for September this year, to enable Island councillors to prepare resolutions on matters of particular interest to Vancouver Island.

Anti-Castro Rebels Planning More Raids

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

MIAMI (AP) — Hit-and-run raids against Fidel Castro's Communist Cuba are halted for the moment. But new action is being planned, possibly soon, in defiance of a United States ban.

Today, two years after the disastrous Bay of Pigs invasion, there is defiance in the air among the sullenly angry, frustrated anti-Castro militants in Miami's exile community. Informed Cuban sources say at least one new attack is in the planning stage.

"Watch out for that next one," said a non-Cuban source whose business it is to know about such matters. "When it comes it's going to be a lulu."

Bases in the Bahamas used by organizations such as Alpha 66, the Second Front of Escambray and the Revolutionary Student Directorate have been put out of action by British and U.S. crackdowns. Their leaders have been ordered to remain in Dade (Miami) County.

MOVE BASES

But anti-Castro organizations are moving to new bases now—probably outside the Bahamas area and most likely somewhere among the small islands in the Caribbean Sea, within striking distance of Cuba.

Recovering from the shock of the U.S. intervention in their anti-Castro activities, the members of the militant organizations are marking time, making plans. They are even talking of uniting their efforts which would be a remarkable development for the perennially-divided Cuban exiles.

They still have the means to carry out considerable harassment. The Escambray group, for example, lost $50,000 worth of weapons and ammunition, confiscated by authorities in the recent crackdowns. But the organizations do not lack money, apparently. Escambray leader Eloy Guiterrez Menoye is known to have boasted that his outfit still has large stores of weapons, ammunition and equipment hidden. A member of Alpha 66 told me "we still have enough boats to give them (the Castro regime) trouble."

BOAT STILL LURKING

Alpha 66 has had two boats intercepted and put out of action by the U.S. and British. Another boat, the Omega III, still is lurking somewhere in international waters in the vicinity of the Bahamas.

Alpha 66 is one of about five organizations, small in membership, which carry on active harassment of the Havana regime.

A well-informed non-Cuban source said:

"The raids in themselves are not important except possibly as a means for the exiles to let off steam and demonstrate their heroism in working to free Cuba. You don't bring down a building by throwing stones through a window. But it sustains their hopes.

"When new attacks come, that in turn will enhance Castro's position. He will blame the United States and then ridicule its patrols. And there will be ridicule from the Cuban exile side, too, and probably from Latin America. There will be anti-Yankeeism all over the place, on all sides."

U.S. Steel Keeps Silent On Prices

NEW YORK (AP)—A pattern of selective price increases seemed to be taking shape today in the United States steel industry but there still was no word from the No. 1 producer, U.S. Steel Corporation.

Republic Steel Corporation, the third-ranking firm, fell into line with three smaller companies by posting boosts averaging $5.34 a ton on products that accounted for about one-fourth of 1962 sales.

The executive committee of U.S. Steel, which initiated last year's abortive price rise, was to meet in regular monthly session in New York today.

Few thought that higher prices fixed by Republic and Pittsburgh Steel Company Monday and two other companies earlier could stand up unless U.S. Steel went along.

ONE-QUARTER

Big Steel, as U.S. Steel is known in the trade, accounts for about a quarter of the American industry's tonnage.

President Kennedy last week conditionally approved increases on selected steel products but warned against a general price increase that could upset the country's economic stability.

Shortly before Republic's announcement, a congressional inquiry into steel prices, profits and production problems was ordered by Senator Paul H. Douglas, Illinois Democrat who is chairman of the joint congressional economic committee. Douglas said hearings will start next week.

REPUBLIC FIRST

Republic was the first among the 10 largest products to disclose pricing plans.

Kaiser Steel Corporation, which held back when other companies advanced prices in April, 1962, only to rescind the increases quickly under administration pressure, said it had reached "no conclusion" this time. Last fall, Kaiser, ninth-largest producer, cut its prices sharply.

Industry-wide production continued to soar, registering its 11th consecutive gain last week. The output of 2,464,000 ingot tons was the highest in three years.

NEW YORK (AP) — Armco Steel Corporation, sixth ranking producer, today became the fifth steelmaker to post higher prices on selected products, boosting items accounting for 38 per cent of sales.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Weston's Earnings Soar

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Earnings and sales of George Weston Ltd. were the highest in history during 1962, according to president George C. Metcalf.

Gordon Bell

Net profit increased 35 per cent to a record $11,531,167 and net per common share was $1.03 compared with 90 cents in 1961. In 1962, 1,794,608 shares were issued in exchange for all the outstanding shares of Eddy Paper Co. whose accounts are consolidated in the Weston report.

Mr. Metcalf said current operations point to another year of notable achievement during 1963. Considerable progress is being made, he said, toward consolidating all subsidiaries in the annual report.

The "tremendous growth potential" of Eddy Paper will contribute to Weston's profit performance to a steadily increasing degree in the years to come, he said.

Net earnings of $879,360 last year were disclosed in the annual report of Western Pacific Products and Crude Oil Pipelines Ltd.

Average deliveries for the year over the 505-mile line from Taylor to Kamloops were 21,218 barrels, although since October deliveries have been in excess of 30,000 barrels daily.

Largest order for sulphur ever sold by a Canadian company has been placed by the Australian sulphur purchasing agency.

During the year 75,000 long tons will be shipped through Vancouver by an export firm, Cansulex, which is jointly owned by B.A. Oil Co. Ltd. and Petrogas Processing Ltd.

Heavy shipments of potash from the International Minerals and Chemical Corp. operation in Saskatchewan are also expected to go through the Vancouver port.

The first export potash warehouse in North America is being built by Vancouver Wharves Ltd. for IMC and the highly-automated $600,000 installation will be capable of loading ships at the rate of 1,200 tons an hour.

At peak operation it will take only four men to operate the whole stockpiling installation.

More than 100,000 tons of potash have moved through Vancouver since September and IMC estimates shipments will rise to 500,000 tons annually.

Grand Bahama Amusement Ltd. owned 20.9 per cent each by Lorada Uranium Mines Ltd. and Seven Arts Productions Ltd., has been granted permission to establish a gambling casino at its Royal Lucayan Hotel on Grand Bahama Island.

Grand Bahama Port Authority owns 50 per cent of the development and the balance is held by Seven Arts president Louis Chesler.

Canada Warned Of Higher Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Tax Foundation says the continuing trend of government expenditures growing faster than the economy "makes it probable that in coming months taxes will increase rather than decrease, particularly at the provincial and municipal levels."

In the first brief to the royal commission on taxation, the private research organization said today that government expenditures, in relation to the gross national product, "have no peacetime precedent."

However, the foundation said that the Canadian tax structure, despite its imperfections, ranks with the best in the world.

The brief is the first of seven to be presented to the six-man commission this week—all outlining general views on Canadian tax problems—before the commission begins regional hearings in Montreal next week.

The commission, headed by Toronto chartered accountant Kenneth Carter, was told by the foundation that many people consider the lowering of marginal personal and corporate income tax rates as the main job of the commissioners.

These high marginal rates which affect relatively few individuals and corporations "are not very significant from a revenue standpoint," the brief said, "and any changes would not result in major innovations."

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP)—Deaths of five more children Monday brought to 17 the total reported dead in northern Mexico's worst heat wave in four years.

Kennedy Calls Wife Of Jailed Minister

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Intervention by President Kennedy enabled Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr., to talk by telephone with her minister husband, jailed for leading an anti-segregation march in Birmingham, Ala.

"The president called and said he had been in touch with Birmingham," Mrs. King related Monday night.

"He told me: 'I've arranged for your husband to telephone you very shortly. You probably know we sent FBI agents in Monday night to talk with him and he's all right.' "

Mrs. King said her husband called shortly afterward and assured her he was all right and in good spirits.

"He didn't know why he wasn't able to call," she said. "I had heard he was being held incommunicado."

Mrs. King said she first tried to reach the president Sunday, talked with Press Secretary Pierre Salinger and then received two calls from the president's brother, Attorney-General Robert Kennedy.

She said both the president and his brother assured her they "would be doing all they could."

Long a leader in desegregation campaigns, Mr. King went to jail Friday for participating in a march protesting segregation in the Alabama industrial city.

Mrs. King said she decided to call the president about the Birmingham situation "because I thought it was about the only thing I could do."

"I had not heard from my husband since his arrest. Usually he calls me after he gets in jail. I was concerned about his safety and just anxious to hear from him."

Ban-Bomb Acts Praised

EDMONTON (CP)—Dr. Chisholm of Victoria, former director of the World Health Organization, said Monday public demonstrations and ban-the-bomb marches are effective methods for calling attention to problems needing change.

The noted Canadian lecturer, phychiatrist and author said in an interview such action pointed out that many people willingly allowed themselves to become spectacles to publicize a situation they feel is too dangerous to be ignored.

He said, however, that the concern should be for banning warfare rather than just banning bombs.

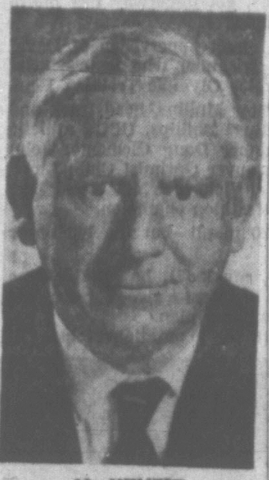
World Revolution Changes Role of Canadian Teacher

TORONTO (CP) — World revolution at several different levels has expanded the role of the teacher to that of a key person in society, Dr. Norman A. M. MacKenzie, former president of the University of British Columbia, said here Monday.

Dr. MacKenzie told the annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association that in addition to the required program of reading, writing and arithmetic, teachers must be able to help their pupils form opinions on national and international affairs.

A general principle which Dr. MacKenzie said students should be taught was that everything possible must be done to preserve peace and prevent the use of nuclear weapons.

They should also be taught that because of its multi-cultural character, Canada can be a world influence for good, he said.



MacKENZIE
. . . 'key persons'

On the controversial question of Britain's entry into the European Common Market, Dr. MacKenzie said "we should be interested in it and prepared to support it though we in Canada might suffer some short-term losses."

Dr. MacKenzie said teachers have a role to play in assuring the continued existence of Canada as a nation.

French Canadian feelings of separatism, the "powerful and persuasive" cultural impact of the United States and the multi-racial composition of the Canadian people threaten Canada's existence, he said.

To remedy this, he suggested the teaching of French and English in all primary and secondary schools, more courses on national and international problems in teacher-training, colleges and increased emphasis in schools on Canadian history.

Will Seek Recount

PETROLIA, Ont. (CP)—Liberal candidate John W. Burgess said Monday night he will seek a judicial recount of votes cast in Lambton-Kent in the April 8 federal election. The official count Monday in the riding reduced the majority of Progressive Conservative M. T. McCutcheon to 14 votes over Mr. Burgess.

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Lt.-Gen. Odd Bull of Norway has been appointed chief of staff of the United Nations truce supervision organization in Palestine, Secretary-General U Thant announced Monday.

$21,000 for Fund

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first return mail Monday brought $21,000 to the Easter Seal campaign for the B.C. Society of Crippled Children. Society director Jim Dewhurst said the amount was $5,000 more than last year.

DYSON FORMULA FOR TRACK AND FIELD SUCCESS

By ERNIE FEDORUK

'Winkle Them Out of the Bushes and Inspire 'Em'

"Canada," says Geoffrey H. Dyson, "can turn out great track and field athletes. This country has a wealth of athletic material. And you don't have to be very wise to know that because you do it in hockey and skating . . ."

The answer, he says, is "work."

"Work . . . and wax enthusiasm. If Canadians are prepared to work they can turn out great athletes.

"Winkle them out of the bushes, coach them, and inspire them."

Inspiration is what Dyson, along with the Royal Canadian Legion, is offering. Head coach of the Amateur Athletic Union in England for 15 years until he quit last year, Dyson arrived in Victoria late Monday night to help launch the Legion's track and field clinic for B.C.'s embryo coaches.

The four-day clinic, attracting approximately 80 embryo coaches from throughout the province (about 30 from the Victoria area alone), got underway this morning on the Gordon Head campus.

The clinic is under the direct supervision of David Abbott, an energetic young Irishman who is provincial program director for the Junior Olympic Training Plan.

Assistants include Dr. Peter Mullins, head track and field coach at UBC; R. J. "Bus" Phillips, UBC's athletic director; former distance runner Doug Clements; John Minichello, coach of the Vancouver Optimist Club; Lloyd Henderson, assistant director, Victoria YMCA; and Don Steen, three-time Canadian decathlon champion.

There are others, too—20 in all—but the big name is Dyson's.

A ripe 48 ("49 in June, my lad"), he left big-time coaching in England in order to accept a five-year contract as director of the Legion's training plan.

He came to Victoria with the reputation of being a hard-hitting, blunt and outspoken chap, who couldn't resist the temptation of stepping on official toes.

Geoffrey Dyson turns out to be a friendly, likeable, gregarious fellow who can hardly wait to put Canadian track and field in order.

Tired and travel-weary after his flight from Toronto, he was willing to concede an interview. Without tea. ("Tea? Sorry, sir," said the desk clerk, "the coffee shop's closed for the night.")

He spoke with a nervous rapidity, never failing to state a fact or quote a figure from an apparent storehouse of information and ideas.

The production of world-ranking athletes, said Dyson, does not depend on a nation's size, it's wealth, or the fact it has an unsuitable climate.

"Some Canadians think this country, with a population of only 18 million, can't compete with the world's track and field powers. That's nonsense. Finland has only five million, yet look how badly they beat Canada in track and field at the last Olympics.

"Nor has wealth anything to do with it. Economically, this is a very rich country compared to Poland. But the Poles finished far ahead of Canada . . .

"Then there's the argument about this country's harsh climate. It isn't any different than the climate in Russia, Sweden or Finland . . .

"No magic is necessary. It's up to the people of Canada. If they want to develop track and field it can be done. The gospel should be spread throughout the country . . . to parents, teachers, and so on.

"Above all, we've got to give the athletes competition. That's half the trouble with Canada. No one is going to train if there's no competition. That is one of the most difficult problems we will have to overcome.

"It isn't going to be easy but it can be done."

LOOKS AT SPORTS

The intention had been to get to Gorge Vale early Sunday to give Ron MacLeod and Dick Munn advice in their Times-Island Open second-round golf match. Neither had specifically requested help from this source but that was probably just an oversight. Why only the last time this operator toured Cedar Hill, no less an expert than Bill Barnes watched in awe and said: "My goodness! The things you do to a golf course!"

The best-laid plans of mice and men gang 'aft-aglay, however, especially on Easter Sunday. And especially when small children insist on hunting for Easter eggs. This is an event we all look keenly for. If you don't look keenly—and jump out of the way quickly—in our manse you may not live to see the next hunt.

MacLeod and Munn were walking up to the ninth green when we arrived at Gorge Vale, Victoria's grass-carpeted Rolling Hills. MacLeod, 30, one up, white cap, black sweater, check pants, eyes as cold as a Scottish lake, was on the green in two. Munn, 20, no cap (he has more hair and better distribution than MacLeod), black sweater, dark brown pants, set jaw, was six inches off the green, also in two.

Drive for Show—Putt for Dough

Munn lined up his putt, addressed it, swung . . . and was short. MacLeod, thrifty with haste, seemed to study every blade of grass before stepping up to the ball. He did not stroke it hurriedly. He rarely does. Rather he did a toe-and-heel jig before sending it along. At a calculated guess the cup was 20 feet away. His ball rolled gently and then—plop! Two up.

A man whistled slowly and said: "What's that saying? You drive for show and putt for dough."

Twice later, before he was to turn Master Munn into a Times Open viewer, MacLeod dropped putts (15-footer on the 16th, and 27-footer on the 18th) which contradicted a popular opinion that he is not the world's best putter. The word was that his woods and irons were good but on the greens he did not exactly burn up the grass. At that he lapsed—or relapsed—at the 13th. Needing an 18-inch putt for a par four to halve the hole, his hands appeared to tremble slightly and the ball went wide.

He knew it would be off as soon as he touched the ball. Without waiting for it to stop, he bent over, snatched it, picked up the stick and banged it into the hole. Then he dropped his ball and took a practice swing. Up to this point there hadn't been a strong feeling here that Munn would overcome the tragedy of that ninth hole. Now he was only one down and the day was brighter.

"I saw him tremble just a little, too," Munn said Monday. "I thought, 'Boy, maybe here's where I go'!"

Golf Is a Funny (Ha! Ha!) Game

They halved the next three, leaving MacLeod only one up coming to the 16th. Then MacLeod drilled in a 15-footer and assorted onlookers nodded as if to say, "That's it." Golf is a funny game—funny as in //&'//&/%&—and Munn, needing only a two-footer to take the 17th, made it by the thickness of his heavy Tucson tan.

One up for MacLeod. One hole left.

It has been written how MacLeod tied Munn up in pink bows by rattling in a 27-foot putt on the 18th. The gallery appreciated the shot and showed it. Munn, professionally speaking, admired it. But he pointed out Monday that the outcome of this hole may have been easily decided on their tee shots. MacLeod outdrove Munn by some eight yards. But Ron's drive was less than two feet short of a ditch.

"A little bit farther," Munn said Monday, "and it would have been unplayable . . ."

Disturb Bill at Your Own Risk

They have much in common, married and with families. But on the course Munn seems more relaxed in a natural rather than a contrived way.

How does he combat pressure?

"That's a very good question," he said. "I feel it. We all do. I try to overcome it just by being myself. If I see somebody I know I say, 'Hello, Bill,' or 'Hello, Jack.' But I don't ask him what he shot yesterday. You can carry casualness too far."

Others deal with pressure in different ways. Bill Wakeham, out of much the same golfing mold as Munn, is as approachable as an aroused lion on the course. Off it few are more affable.

You would think that after a duel to the death and all that on Sunday, MacLeod and Munn would have relaxed Monday. They did. At golf courses. MacLeod toured Uplands. Munn went back to work at Cedar Hill for Lyle Barnes, his caddy of Sunday.

Munn says he has had the out-of-town assistant pro routine, plans to settle down and live a non-sedentary life as pro, greenskeeper and story-teller.

Business good?

"Quite good," he said. He motioned to a display of clubs. "I sell these and there always seems to be beginners for lessons."

Lessons, eh? Well, now, Richard, I guess I'll have to sharpen my game so I can get good enough to qualify as a beginner. Then that Bill Barnes better watch out. We'll make him eat those words.

Cowichan XI Tops Tourney

Cowichan Braves are Totem soccer champions.

They won the all-native tournament at Hampton Park on Sunday by defeating Kuper Island 3-0 in the final of a knockout series involving five Indian teams.

Braves reached the final via a bye and a 2-1 victory over Saanich Native Sons. Kuper Island advanced after trimming Songhees Falcons 13-2 and tripping Saanich Warriors 4-0.

Native Sons took the consolation final, defeating Falcons 6-0. Outstanding player of the tourney was inside left Gilbert Sam, of Kuper Island.

PUCKSTERS SUSPENDED

Indefinite suspensions for deliberate attempts to injure have been levied against two Mid-Island Hockey League players by the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association.

President Ivan Temple said Bill Haslam, of Nanaimo, and Norm Milburn, of Port Alberni, will learn the length of their suspensions at the annual BCAHA meeting in May.

ONE OUT FROM WIN

Mets' 4-3 Loss Morale-Mauler

MILWAUKEE (AP)—New York Mets lost again.

The backward-advancing Mets moved forward for 8⅔ innings and two strikes Monday, then Leo Maye poked a two-run homer that gave Milwaukee Braves a 4-3 victory in the only game played in baseball's major leagues.

For the Mets—from 72-year-old Casey Stengel, the grizzled manager, to 18-year-old Ed Kranepool, the rookie outfielder—the loss was a morale-mauler, bringing back the memory of last year's dismal start that never ended.

Against the Braves, the Mets massed their heaviest artillery and boomed 12 hits, they committed only one error, they led going into the ninth, they were one strike away from victory when Tracy Stallard fired to Maye.

Stallard, it is remembered, has been through some of this before. He's the pitcher who served up home run No. 61 to Roger Maris in 1961.

The defeat left the Mets with an 0-6 record, dropping them 4½ games back of the National League leaders—in the cellar.

WON'T COME CLOSER

They're still three defeats away from duplicating last year's opening nine-game losing string and 11 away from their record 17-game losing streak, but they won't come any closer to victory without tasting it.

Shut out for six innings by Bob Shaw, the Mets struck in the seventh. Tim Harkness, Ted Schreiber, Marv Throneberry and Cliff Cook singled in succession, driving in two runs.

In the eighth, the Mets snapped the tie on singles by Kranepool and Duke Snider, a walk to Jim Hickman and a sacrifice fly by Harkness.

In the ninth, Stallard, working in relief of starter Al Jackson, got Ed Mathews and Joe Torre out to open the inning. Then Maye struck.

The victory went to Claude Raymond of St. Jean, Que., his first of the season. Raymond worked only the ninth inning, giving up a hit and a walk and striking out one man.

Japan Wins Finale

VANCOUVER (CP)—The All-Japan team defeated a surprisingly strong British Columbia junior side 3-0 here Monday at Brockton Point to close out a B.C. rugby tour with four victories against one defeat.

The try that gave the Japanese the close victory was scored in the opening five minutes by wing forward Tadao Karasudani.

B.C. team captain Tim Cummings, playing at stand-off, picked up the ball as it rolled out from a scrum and threw it behind him. Fullback Geoff Stancombe missed the pass which landed behind the line and Karasudani fell on it.

The attempted convert was wide.

JAPANESE SLOWED

A heavy wet field slowed the Japanese backs. They had few opportunities to get their famed passing attack going. However, they did turn in a fine kicking game and the forwards were adept at taking the ball with them.

The B.C. juniors failed to get their offensive going in the backfield but the forwards kept right on the ball and their tackling broke up the Japanese offensive time and again.

In the second half the visitors had four opportunities to score from only a few yards out but the B.C. side always managed to clear the ball.

Team captain Kunio Miyai was outstanding for the Japanese in both running and kicking and Masatake Kusatsu turned in a fine game in the scrum.

Cummings, Jim French and Harry Schreiber were best in the backfield for B.C. while Fred Sturrock and Bruce Goodwin were the strong men in the forward line.

DETROIT (CP)—How would you feel if you were Hank Bassen?

You're the second-string goal-tender for Detroit Red Wings and everybody is talking about the elbow injury of first-stringer Terry Sawchuk.

Tonight is the fourth game of the Stanley Cup final and your team is trailing 2-1 in the best-of-seven series to the league-champion Toronto Maple Leafs.

Sawchuk says he's okay—maybe there's a bone chip, but he'll be ready to play tonight. But nobody knows for sure, certainly not Bassen.

This is a big one for the Wings. The team lost the first two games, both by 4-2 scores, at Toronto, but managed to win 3-2 at home Sunday night.

TONIGHT IS MUST

"Without a win tonight that one Sunday doesn't mean anything," says veteran Detroit defenceman Marcel Pronovost.

The fifth game is at Toronto Thursday. A sixth, if necessary, is back here next Sunday and a possible seventh at Toronto next Tuesday.

Tonight's game will be broadcast (CBU) and telecast (channels 2 and 6) in its entirety, starting at 5.

Bassen, who hasn't played a National Hockey League game in more than a month, is familiar with the situation. He also knows a goaltender can't stay sharp by just practising.

The Leafs held a brisk workout at noon Monday at the Detroit Olympia. But most of the Wings, who feel rest is their most valuable weapon, took advantage of summer weather at a Toledo golf course.

Only nine Detroit players, including Bassen, held a light skating practice.

"You've got to keep talking to yourself all the time in practices," said Bassen after the workout. "You've got to push yourself to stay sharp."

HAS TO PRETEND

What he meant was that a goaltender has to pretend he's playing in a game—fall to block rebounds and clear the puck. It's easy to become relaxed in practices.

Sawchuk's injury came late in Sunday's game when he fell heavily on his elbow.

"I think there must be a bone chip in there," Sawchuk said. "I hurt it two weeks ago in the Chicago series but I'll put a little hot stuff on it tonight and I'll be all right."

Even before Sawchuk's injury speculation was that Detroit manager-coach Sid Abel might make a goaltending switch.

But Bassen, 30, and a widely-travelled minor-leaguer, says he doesn't expect to see any action. "Terry'll be okay," he said. "They've given me my chances up here."

HOPE FRANK'S HOT

The Leafs, favored again in tonight's game, are hoping Frank Mahovlich will bust loose. He was knocked out of the lineup early in the first game of the series on a check by Bill Gadsby.

He returned to the lineup Sunday and looked sharp. In Monday's workout he was skating with his old exuberance. Detroit's Floyd Smith hit Mahovlich hard Sunday night but the Leaf scoring ace bounced back.

Centre Alex Faulkner is the toast of Detroit after scoring his fourth and fifth playoff goals in the Wings' win Sunday. And his friends from Newfoundland have been showing their appreciation.

The native of Bishop's Falls, first Newfoundlander to play in the NHL, has been swamped with telegrams from his proud home province.

"He's sure a hero in Newfoundland," commented Pronovost: "But no bigger a hero than he is to us."

Only Fear Kept Jeffrey Alive

DETROIT (CP)—Larry Jeffrey, one of Detroit Red Wings' brightest young prospects, classes himself as the happiest player in this year's Stanley Cup final.

Jeffrey is happy to be alive.

Not even the Wings know how close they came to losing the 22-year-old native of Goderich, Ont., one night last June.

The NHL's only tugboat skipper came to within a whisker of losing his life then in the dark waters of Lake Huron.

KEPT IT QUIET

"Even the guys on the team don't know about it," said Jeffrey Monday in an interview. He was sitting on Detroit's Olympia, watching Toronto Maple Leafs work out in preparation for the fourth game of the Stanley Cup final scheduled here tonight.

He was hesitant to discuss his ordeal.

"My mum claims that's why I had only a so-so season," he smiled.

Jeffrey is a partner in a tugboat service at Goderich. It conducts scenic tours on Lake Huron, hauls in stranded yachts and uses two of its three tugs as ice-breaker in the winter.

His ordeal, a well-kept secret until now, started as a harmless evening of water skiing with another youth and a girl.

They borrowed a 15-foot outboard. One mile from shore and in 27 feet of water, the boat capsized when hit by the backlash of a wave off a breakwall.

"We weren't wearing the life jackets and they went down with the boat," said Jeffrey. "The other fellow couldn't swim, so we gave him the only life preserver we had.

"He started for shore and I stayed with the girl, hanging on to one end of the boat which was still above water. We couldn't put any weight on the boat because it was slowly being pulled under by the weight of the motor.

"My feet were swollen from the cold water and after about an hour the boat sank completely and we had to tread water. It was dark by then and there was absolutely nothing in sight. I was afraid the girl was going to panic.

"Only fear kept us up."

The male companion finally made it through the rough water to the breakwall. "I don't know how he ever managed to climb it," said Larry.

ATTRACTS BOAT

Finally, 1½ hours after the boat capsized, Jeffrey's friend on the breakwall caught the attention of a small boat on the other side.

"It took a long time, but finally he saw us in the water and it seemed like years before he reached us," Larry recalled.

The girl spent the next 30 hours in hospital in shock and Jeffrey, who hasn't been in an outboard since, had to take two weeks' vacation to get over it.

"If she had panicked, or if either of us had taken cramps, we both would have gone down. Really, it was like a slow death. I don't know how we got out."

Could you have reached shore yourself? Jeffrey was asked.

"Oh, I'm a strong swimmer," he said. "But I couldn't leave the girl."

Minor Lacrosse

Greater Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association will hold registrations and workouts this week. Juvenile A and B players will register at Memorial Arena, Wednesday, at 7 p.m.

Workouts will be held Thursday and Saturday, at Stevenson Park, for midgets (under 10) at 9 a.m.; peewees (under 12) at 10 a.m.; bantams (under 14) at 11 a.m. New players may register at these sessions.

McVie Top Candidate For Chilliwack Post

CHILLIWACK—All-star defenceman Tom McVie may be the new playing-coach of the Chilliwack entry in the Inter-City Lacrosse League this year.

McVie has been contacted for the post by general manager Bill Dickinson. Negotiations have been going on for 10 days. McVie is a forward with Portland Buckaroos, currently engaged in Western Hockey League playoffs with San Francisco.

Although he played only 22 games last season, McVie scored 41 goals and had 17 assists for Nanaimo, and was a unanimous choice for the all-star team. He will be 28 in June.

Chilliwack entered the league as Norburns last season after winning the western Canada junior championship in 1961. Norburns won four games, lost 28.

Club opens its season May 3 against Nanaimo in Chilliwack.

THINGS ARE POPPING . . .

. . . LIKE ARMS, LEGS

Medics Have Major Problem

NEW YORK (AP)—The way things have been popping in major league baseball these days you not only need a scorecard to tell who's playing, you have to have the latest medical bulletin.

The things popping have been arms and legs belonging to such stars as Harmon Killebrew, Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris, Frank Lary, Jim Grant, Bob Purkey, Vern Law and Maury Wills.

Killebrew, who led the American League with 48 home runs last season, was ordered to the bench Monday by Minnesota Twins until his ailing right knee is strong again. Killebrew twisted the knee in spring training and has hit .105 since the season started.

The word from New York Yankees' camp is that both Mantle and Maris, along with pitcher Bill Stafford, will miss a two-game series with Detroit Tigers starting tonight.

Mantle pulled a rib muscle Saturday. Maris has been out with a pulled leg muscle and Stafford has a strained arm.

Lary is the Tigers' No. 1 problem. The ace right-hander's arm is free of pain but still weak from lack of work. Lary pitched only 80 innings last season after developing shoulder trouble.

Grant, a mainstay of Cleveland Indians' pitching staff, suffered a severe bruise Sunday when hit by a line drive off the bat of Detroit pitcher Jim Bunning. He is expected to return to action when the Indians travel to Baltimore next weekend.

The news about two other sore-armed pitchers, Purkey of Cincinnati Reds and Law of Pittsburgh Pirates, remained indefinite. Neither has been able to pitch and there's no estimate on when they will be ready to resume work.

Wills, out since the opening game of the National League season with a wrenched ankle, is expected back at shortstop for the Dodgers when Chicago Cubs invade Los Angeles tonight.

Other recent medical reports:

Los Angeles Angels—pitcher Dan Osinski lost for two weeks with a broken little finger.

Chicago White Sox—outfielder Floyd Robinson, No. 3 hitter in American League last season, will miss Chicago's home opener today because of pulled muscle in his left hip.

San Francisco Giants—outfielder Matty Alou lost indefinitely with an injured right knee.

New York Mets—First-baseman Gil Hodges and outfielder Frank Thomas, two long-ball hitters on a club that has failed to win in six games, are out. Thomas has a lame right shoulder, Hodges a sore leg.

Job Shortage Driving Irish To Canada

LONDON (CP)—A job shortage in Northern Ireland is driving some of Ulster's finest football players to Canada.

Next on the list to leave is 28-year-old Roy Rea, agile goalkeeper of Glentoran in the Irish Football League who was named last Friday as Ulster's Footballer of the Year.

Now a clerical officer at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Belfast, Rea is emigrating with his wife and child. He flies to Toronto April 28 and expects to catch on with a Canadian team.

Another Irish player, Ken Beattie, left Northern Ireland some weeks ago for Canada and has been given permission to play for Hamilton Steelers.

PATTERSON, TOO

Fred Patterson, 26 - year - old inside forward of Ards, also has decided to cut ties with Ulster and is awaiting a sailing date. He is expected to settle in Toronto.

Wilbur Cush, captain of Portadown, has had Canadian offers this season and last but may stay at home because his wife is expecting a baby.

Unemployment is running around the 10-per-cent mark in Northern Ireland and Irish sports editors agreed that "there isn't much here for the boys."

Shuttles Takes B.C. Chess Title

D. Shuttles, of Vancouver, captured top honors in the British Columbia chess championships held during the weekend at the Victoria City Chess Club.

Runnerup was E. Macskasy, master player from Vancouver, who lost his bid for the title when upset by townsman G. Neufahrt.

A. Lane, of Port Alberni, captured "B" tournament honors, edging Victoria's O. C. Jowett.

CAHA Lifts Air Rights From Announcer-Critics

EDMONTON (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has suspended indefinitely the rights of two Saskatchewan sportscasters to broadcast CAHA games.

Art Potter of Edmonton, CAHA president, announced Monday in a prepared statement:

"The rights of Ken Newans of Moose Jaw and Linus Westberg of Yorkton to broadcast CAHA games has been suspended indefinitely by the CAHA."

Newans is a broadcaster for radio station CHAB in Moose Jaw and Westberg for CJGX in Yorkton.

Potter said the suspensions "were brought about by improper use of broadcast privileges in the junior hockey game in Edmonton Saturday by continuously and severely criticizing officials, thereby giving an erroneous picture of the game as played.

"This type of broadcaster is a definite detriment to sport and cannot be tolerated."

Potter said he personally did not listen to the brodcast and obtained information on its content from CAHA officials in Saskatchewan. He declined to name any of the officials.

CAHA OWNS RIGHTS

Potter said the CAHA owns all broadcast and television rights of its playoffs. When persons are given these rights "their job is to broadcast the game, not criticize officials and the CAHA."

Potter said one reason he decided on the suspension was that the broadcast was "building up a strong impression which could have caused serious trouble" in the sixth game of the Memorial Cup quarter-final series between Edmonton Oil Kings and Estevan Bruins in Estevan Monday night.

Potter said comments made during the broadcast disagreed with all the referee's calls, referred to the Oil Kings as a "bunch of butchers" and accused the CAHA of not being capable of operating the playoffs.

Potter said Westberg made his comments during the intermission betwen the second and third periods. He said he had talked with Westberg today and the Yorkton broadcaster was going to send him notes on the contents of comments made during the broadcast.

"Apparently he didn't say too much," Potter said.

RENEWS CRITICISM

Newans said in Moose Jaw: "I believe that the series, as handled by the CAHA, has severely hampered both clubs in playing the high calibre hockey they are capable of."

In Ottawa, T. J. Allard, executive vice-president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, expressed surprise at the CAHA move

Montreal hockey broadcaster Danny Gallivan said: "Every sportscaster realizes that his job is to report the game and not editorialize. Yet at the same time, it is his duty and responsibility to give a complete picture of what is happening on the ice, including the officiating."

Potter said the suspension would be discussed by the CAHA executive at the association's annual meeting in May. The two suspended sportscasters could appeal to him and present him with transcripts of the Saturday night broadcast.

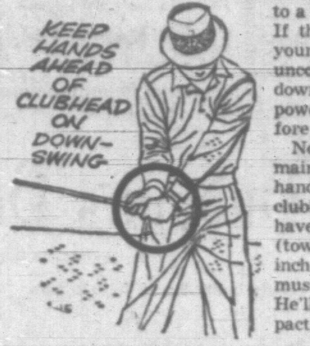
Edmonton won the Saturday game 9-2 and followed with a 2-0 victory Monday night to win the Memorial Cup best-of-seven quarter-final series 4-2. Monday night's game was a hard-hitting encounter but no major scuffles occurred, although it was reported that a fan took a swing at referee Ken Fowles of Winnipeg.

Edmonton now meets Brandon Wheat Kings in the Memorial Cup semifinal series, starting here Friday night.

GOLF SCHOOL

By SAM SNEAD

HANDS LEAD CLUBHEAD



KEEP HANDS AHEAD OF CLUBHEAD ON DOWN-SWING

Once you master the knack of keeping your hands ahead of the clubhead on the downswing, you're well on the way to a crackling, powerful swing. If the clubhead gets ahead of your hands, your wrists are uncocking too quickly on the downswing and most of your power will be dissipated before impact.

Note how today's golfer has maintained his wrist cock. His hands are well ahead of the clubhead at this point. They have only to move forward (toward the target) a few inches, while the clubhead must travel much farther. He'll get that "whip" at impact for sure.

Windsor Finally Makes Allan Cup

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — For the first time in the history of Canadian hockey playoffs a Windsor team has reached the final round.

Windsor Bulldogs turned the trick here Monday night by drowning Moncton Hawks 4-2 and claiming their best-of-seven Eastern Canada Allan Cup series 4-1.

The Bulldogs now meet Winnipeg Maroons in a best-of-seven series for the Allan Cup and the Canadian senior championship, starting here Friday.

Safety Rules Tried in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—New safety rules adopted by the New York State Athletic Commission, including shorter rounds in preliminary fights, a fourth ring rope, 10-ounce gloves and a doctor at each corner who can stop the fight, will be used for the first time tonight at Sunnyside Garden here.

The rules were adopted—on a trial basis—by the commission on the recommendation of a legislative committee that made a study of boxing. The committee was appointed after the death a year ago of world welterweight champion Benny Paret following a bout at New York's Madison Square Garden.

The four-round preliminaries on the card will be fought in two-minute rounds. The scheduled eight-round main event matching welterweights Joey Mangiapane and Lou Anderson will have standard three-minute rounds. The heavier gloves, instead of the standard eight-ouncers, will be used in all bouts.

The fourth rope is designed to prevent injuries such as the fatal one to world featherweight champion Davey Moore in Los Angeles last month.

In Harrisburg, Governor William Scranton deferred a decision on the status of boxing in Pennsylvania after the State Athletic Commission reported that the death of a young amateur boxer "represents a literally classic example of fatal accident in the face of every required safety measure."

After an 80-minute meeting with the three commission members, a spokesman for Scranton said the governor wanted to hold further talks with the physicians making up the commission's medical advisory board.

It had been reported that the governor might consider a boxing ban or moratorium following the death April 6 of army private Francisco Velasquez, 20, in an amateur bout at Carbondale.

Rabbit on a beer label?

It's there all right. It's the sort of quaint discovery you make every time you study an Old Style label.

Next time you're sittin' and sippin' and contentedly agreeing that slow ageing really makes Old Style something special . . . look for the rabbit – and the 6 Indians.

Another amazing Volkswagen

(It could use a few good jokes.)

Remember some of the wise-cracks about our beetle-shaped car?

"Hey, George. When are ya gonna get one for the other foot?"

Or the one about the lady who thought the engine in the rear was a spare.

Very funny. Very good publicity.

Now we've added a new model and everyone is taking it seriously. (Even our competitors say it's nothing to laugh at.)

Can you help us? Just for fun, apply your sense of humour to these sobering features:

The VW 1500 Sedan has two luggage trunks. One at the back, like a conventional car, and one at the front, like a Volkswagen.

The engine is in the back (over the drive wheels) to give better traction. And it's cooled with air so it can't boil over.

Standard equipment includes: bucket seats that adjust to 49 different positions; heater/defroster; electric clock; windshield washers; five arm rests; padded dashboard; padded sun visors; side view mirror; and a floor mounted gear shift.

If you need more inspiration, your VW dealer will let you test drive the new Volkswagen 1500. But be on your guard. Once you find how well it performs, you'll be inclined to take it seriously too.

Folk Song Purists Bombard Bald Eagle's Offbeat Perch

By LES MILLIN

Don Crawford is a folk singer, not a magician.

But his act at The Secret coffee house has enabled the management to say the magic words—"Standing room only."

The tall (6' 5") melancholy countenanced Negro from Berkeley, Calif., has brought down upon himself the wrath of folk song purists by his free-wheeling approach to folk music.

But Victoria enthusiasts, who packed The Secret five times Friday night to hear him, had no complaints.

Crawford, nicknamed the Bald Eagle because he used to shave his head a la Yul Brunner, is off-beat even by the wide-open standards of the entertainment world.

DON CRAWFORD
. . . freewheeler

NO RECORDS

"I have the distinction of being the only folk singer in the United States who has worked every major folk room in the country but has never made a record," he said over breakfast Saturday morning.

Why not?

"I'm not a pusher," he said. "For a couple of years I mainly had a visual act, which doesn't go over on a record. There are some tapes floating around in the States, but I won't push them with a record company."

Crawford has been singing professionally for four years now, and has earned a solid reputation on the basis of his personal appearances.

ACCIDENTAL

He got into the business by accident.

"I was in Los Angeles studying acting, and there wasn't much money to be had, so I was playing bass fiddle in a night club as accompaniment to a vocal act.

"I was fooling around with my guitar in the dressing room one night, and the manager offered me a job singing. That's how it all began."

His views are considered wildly unorthodox by the purists who hold themselves to be the guardians of the folk tradition, because he sings songs from shows, and occasionally from movies.

"I think the elements that make a song a folk song are available in modern music.

"I think that those of us living today have just as much right to make our own music as the people who wrote what we call folk songs.

"They (the purists) put me down a lot."

CHANGING

The ol' Bald Eagle—and the name has stuck, despite the fact that he now sports a full head of hair—thinks the current interest in folk music will last, even though he himself plans to get out of the business.

"The nature of the folk song revival is changing.

"It began with people really liking groups, like the Kingston Trio, and because of their influence on younger people, there will be a real lasting interest.

"The music has life, more than just a catchy tune or rhyme scheme."

Crawford plans to return to university to obtain a degree in journalism, on top of his six semesters of credit in music.

He feels that it ties in with what he has already done.

"I like to sing anything I'm interested in, because I think the whole art in folk singing is to sing songs that have a slice of life in them.

"I think maybe there's something of the same thing in journalism."

YM-YW AQUACADE AT CRYSTAL

500 to Get in the Swim Friday

Members of over 40 YM-YWCA swimming classes, which range from beginner groups to scuba diving and life saving, will showcase what they have learned Friday evening at 7 at the second annual "Y" Aquacade, at the Crystal Garden.

The cast will have 500 swimmers from nine years of age and up.

The show is being put on by the Y's Intermediate Leaders Club, a group for young men and women training to become physical education instructors.

Feature attraction of the water show will be the appearance of Vancouver diver Irene MacDonald, who has represented Canada in the Olympics, British Empire Games and Pan-American Games.

ONLY CANADIAN

Miss MacDonald is the only Canadian to ever hold the U.S. women's diving title.

Accompanying her will be a troupe of young divers she is coaching from Vancouver Swimming Club.

Two synchronized swimming routines will be performed by "Y" coach Rita Norbury.

"The purpose of this show is to illustrate the huge diversity of the aquatic program that is available at the YM-YWCA," said Art Burgess, a "Y" physical director.

Tickets are on sale now at both "Y" buildings and can be bought at the door Friday night. Prices are 65 cents for adults; 35 cents for children or $1.50 for the family.

Teachers Ask 'Strike Fund'

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia teachers want a "contingency fund" of $500,000 —and a committee has already been formed to study ways to set it up and operate it.

The B.C. Teachers' Federation, now in convention here, has never discussed strike action, but it was learned the fund would cover an extension of public relations and lobbying activity should these tactics become necessary.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, APRIL 16, 1963—PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

Like most bystanders in the current shouting match between educators and government at provincial and municipal levels, I'm by no means sure I know which way is up.

With that admission off my chest, let me go on to state that we in the middle—which is to say the taxpayers—would be less bewildered if both sides would quit hair-pulling long eonugh to give us a clear statement of what it's all about.

Over on the mainland, UBC President John Macdonald compares our per capita higher education expenditure unfavorably with Tennessee's—and that, we gather is about as low as a state or province can get.

Not so, protests Education Minister Leslie Peterson, who then goes on to imply that figures are what you make them.

Meanwhile at home here, word that school mill rates are to increase throughout British Columbia brings reactions that range from angry outcries to staunch defence of government policies.

All in all, it's a lot like trying to watch a football game in a heavy fog. Somebody must have the ball, but darned if I can tell who. At the moment I'm not even sure if our split-level local professorium is still technically Victoria College, or should now be referred to as Victoria University.

So, please, I repeat, why not an educationists' truce for at least long enough to enlighten the public as to what the hollering is all about?

* * *

Meanwhile, all I can do here is venture a few observations of my own.

An expanded school system — and I use the term in the broad sense to include our present and planned higher education centres—must be paid for. Since government hasn't a nickel beyond what we furnish from a variety of taxes, it's you, I, and our children who must do the paying.

With this in mind, we ought to get our money's worth, both now and in future years.

I'm tempted to discuss such questionable practices as the annual burning of textbooks which could in numerous instances be repaired to serve again; but that's small potatoes.

What bothers me much more is a persistent feeling that British Columbia is by no means ready for a third tax-financed university, and that the monies to be allotted for Simon Fraser would be much better spent on the two degree-granting universities we already possess.

That third university strikes me as an unwarranted luxury, the sort of institution which is nice to have if private endowments, not taxes, are footing the bills. But that isn't the case, and I very much doubt that B.C.'s population and prospects in the predictable future justify the move.

* * *

I also question the worth of the proposed junior colleges, or any mills which offer half-a-loaf higher education. The shift at the end of sophomore year to a full university is bound to be dislocating, a fact which many who went from old Vic College to UBC will confirm.

The junior college student who completes his two years and stops there will have the satisfaction of knowledge accrued, but not much else. There's no payoff on half-earned degrees.

I think the taxpayers' dollars would be better spent in boosting student grants and providing adequate dormitory accommodation here and in Vancouver for the up-country student. In other words, don't take the junior college to him, but make it possible for him to attend one of our degree-granting universities on the coast.

That's my thinking on the subject, and I'm all too well aware that it represents an over-simplification of a complex picture.

But I'm stuck with it until or unless the professionals in education quit their grade-four-level bickering and set us all straight.

I don't care how the sovereign state of Tennessee chooses to school its young. What concerns me is how we should handle education here at home.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you please tell me how many people have swam the Juan de Fuca Strait? Is it correct a person by the name of George Taylor of Eastern Canada swam it about 30 years ago?—J.A.H.

A. Only three swimmers, Bert Thomas, Cliff Lumsdon and Marilyn Bell, have conquered the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Q. What does a ring-side seat cost for a world championship fight?—D.C.

A. These prices vary depending on gate appeal of the fighters and the weight class they are fighting under. In recent fights for the heavyweight title of the world, ringside seats cost $100.

EXCITING EXPERIENCE for 13-year-old Kenneth Peach, who it was first feared had suffered serious injury in a fall af Mt. Finlayson, was rescue by navy helicopter. Here he is attended in wire basket stretcher by Leading Seaman Barry Glover. (Ryan Bros photo.)

Boy Hoisted From Cliff By 'Copter

An adventuresome 13-year-old boy escaped with little more than a few bumps and bruises after a 30-foot fall down the side of Mount Finlayson late Monday afternoon.

Ken Peach, 1118 Hillside, is reported today in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital, where he was taken after being hoisted from among trees on the mountainside by an RCN helicopter.

The boy was climbing on the mountainside at about 3:10 p.m. with two companions when he slipped on the mossy slope, rolling and falling about 30 feet on to some rocks.

WENT FOR HELP

John Ferguson, 14, of 2634 Graham, ran for help, while his brother Danny, 13, stayed with the injured boy.

Langford Volunteer Fire Department responded with a newly-formed five-man rescue team which was led by John to the spot where Ken lay.

The boy was complaining of a sore back, and the rescue party radioed for a helicopter from Vancouver Island Helicopters Ltd.

However, the machine, which was not equipped with a rescue hoist, was unable to land in the dense woods.

In an effort to remove the injured boy before nightfall, the rescue team loaded Ken onto a stretcher and began the long trip down the mountain.

However, a winch-equipped navy HUP-3 rotor helicopter from Patricia Bay Airport arrived about 6:30 p.m.

HOISTED

The rescue party moved to a bare stretch of ground, where Ken was hoisted into the helicopter on 30 feet of cable.

The rescue was made with some danger due to the density of trees around the area, witnesses said.

The boy was flown to HMCS Naden and was driven in navy ambulance to hospital where he was admitted with "possible injured lumbar spine."

Ken's mother, Mrs. Ernest Peach, said today her son "had no business to be" on the mountain.

"When he said he wanted to go mountain climbing, I thought he meant up Mount Tolmie," she explained.

DOGWOOD DOUBLES DRAFTED

Wanted: Dogwood trees doing double duty.

It is believed there are dogwoods growing in the Saanich Peninsula which bloom twice a year, once in spring, once in fall.

Jack Crossley, in charge of ornamental tree research at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Saanichton, would like to locate these hard-working dogwoods so he can select special strains.

He's also interested in dogwood trees sporting double-petalled flowers. Mr. Crossley can be reached at Granite 5-2131.

Man Admits Bad Cheques Buying Spree

A Hamilton, Ont. man in his early 20's pleaded guilty today in city police court to 16 counts of obtaining nearly $3,000 worth of goods by false pretences in a purchasing spree March 29 and 30.

Charles Henry Bird, who turned himself over to Vancouver city police Sunday was charged with using forged cheques to obtain jewelry, clothing, cameras and luggage from 16 Victoria businesses.

REMANDED

He was remanded to April 23 for probation report and sentence, and to give the crown opportunity to check on a possible record with police in eastern Canada.

City detective Norman Bath testified in court the accused had obtained the goods by worthless cheques drawn on the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Douglas and Cormorant Streets.

The fraud perpetrated on a weekend was not discovered until the following Monday when the bank's audit was made.

Det. Bath said two articles had been pawned in Vancouver, but the remainder had been sold in "cheap beer parlors" and no recovery was likely to be made.

Bird had only $48 in his possession when he surrendered to police.

VICTIMS

The articles obtained by the accused from local businesses were read out in court:

March 29—Men's clothing ($105.92) from Don Forster Men's Wear; slacks and a suit ($138.50) from O. H. Dorman's Ltd.; a suitcase ($59.85) from T. Eaton Co. Ltd.; a pair of boots ($31.45) from Old Country Shoe Store, and men's clothing ($47.10) from British Importers Ltd.

March 30—Diamond wedding and engagement ring set ($195) from K. A. McLeod Ltd.; movie camera ($195) from Jus-Rite Photos Ltd.; movie camera and film ($236.65) from Victoria Photo Supply Ltd.; diamond wedding and engagement ring set ($262.50) from Henry Birks and Sons Ltd.; diamond wedding and engagement ring set ($178.50) from D. G. Pennock; wedding and engagement rings ($251.74) from F. W. Francis Ltd.; movie camera ($123.81) from Hudson's Bay Co. Ltd.; camera ($167.48) from Cunninghams Drugs Ltd.; diamond ring ($341.25) from Rose's Jewellers Ltd.; two rings ($385.25) from Little and Taylor Ltd., and a radio $52.45) from Young and Banfield Radio Ltd.

Towaway Plan Asked To Move Parked Cars

THESE TWO MEMBERS of Victoria Girls' Drill Team are latest entrants in Miss Victoria contest sponsored by Junior Chamber of Commerce. At left is 18-year-old Merle Webb, a dark-haired, hazel-eyed stenographer who lives at 999 Violet Avenue. The blonde is Patricia Kelly, 19, of 3179 Alder Street, who is an accountant's clerk. Other girls interested in contest qualifications should contact Doug Webb at 383-0744 or 477-4342, or Win Garcin, 382-6111, local 2564, or 383-1484.

Tender Call Requested By Committee

Vehicles parked in "no stopping" zones should be towed away, city traffic committee recommended today.

The committee urged city council to amend its bylaws to permit towing and to call for bids on towing services.

The recommendation was one of 11 in a report adopted by works committee and passed on to council.

Similar efforts several years ago were unsuccessful and the towing concept was dropped in favor of rigorous tagging by police of all cars parked illegally in downtown curbside lanes during the rush hour.

Apparently this system did not solve the problem and it was found that even one illegally parked car could plug the inside lane traffic for blocks.

EXEMPTIONS

Traffic committee also recommended that City Hall adopt a policy of exempting out-of-town convention delegates from parking restrictions in both metered and non-metered areas.

It suggested exemption stickers could be issued by the police department to persons who qualified for the privilege.

Other recommendations include:

Banning parking on the north side of Superior 50 feet west of Menzies; on the north side of Rockland Avenue 50 feet east of Quadra; and on the west side of Davie between Leighton and Fort Streets;

Permission for all owners of apartment buildings of 25 suites or more to apply for a passenger loading zone in front of the buildings.

BUT POLICE DON'T CHEW THEM OUT

Victoria's anti-litter bylaw has plenty of teeth if only the police department will use them, city works committee was informed today.

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady said the bylaw is sound and provides for a maximum fine of up to $250 for throwing paper or any rubbish on the street.

"All that is necessary is that police officers . . . becoming aware of the violation . . . should take appropriate action which would ordinarily take the form of a prosecution . . ." Mr. O'Grady said.

He said the city prosecutor could suggest a sum for a fine and the magistrate likely would take that into consideration.

Police commission recently repeated instructions that police crack down on litter bugs.

High-Rise Foes Organize Teams

More names are coming in by phone and mail to join the protest against high-rise apartments in Greater Victoria, one of the campaign organizers said today.

"We would like 20,000 names if we could get them," said Mrs. Shirley Dowell, 3270 Upper Terrace Road. The campaign picked up more than 1,200 names over the weekend.

"We have set up a system of team captains in each of the municipalities to help with the phone calls and we would like to have two women volunteers from Esquimalt to complete the system," she said.

Mrs. Dowell sail all callers are being asked to contact their friends and solicit support for the campaign against construction of high-rise apartments in residential areas or around the Gordon Head campus.

Here are some of the quotes collected by the campaign organizers which they said were representative of the general response:

H. H. Smith, McClure Street: "I have enjoyed the scenic beauty of Victoria for 50 years and I feel high-rise apartments in residential areas would be a blot on the landscape."

Mrs. H. E. F. Makowski, Plymouth Street:

"No high-rise apartments should be allowed in any part of Greater Victoria without a public vote."

D. F. Wingate, of Seattle, visiting here for the holiday weekend:

"If my family and I want to see a lot of high apartments, we can see them in Seattle or Portland. But we came to Victoria to see beautiful homes and gardens. Victoria is unique, don't change it."

Jack Storrie, Rupert Street:

"There should be no high-rise in a residential area without a vote."

Mrs. F. A. Smith:

"No high-rise apartments should be built in Greater Victoria without the public being fully informed and it put to a public vote."

Summer Jobs Start For Survey Ships

Two hydrographic survey ships left the Inner Harbor today for their summer assignments.

The W. J. Stewart will go first to Vancouver, for a six-week stint in Burrard Inlet before proceeding to the northern Hecate Strait region. The Marabell is assigned to the Strait of Georgia.

W. Saanich Road Job To Boost Speed Limit

Provincial highways department crews and equipment are upgrading West Saanich Road for 40-mile-an-hour traffic.

Saanich MLA John Tisdalle said the work involves easing of bad curves and widening of narrow road shoulders.

But he cautioned, contrary to the beliefs of many residents, the project does not herald the creation of a four-lane expressway on Patricia Bay Highway.

ALTERNATE ROUTE

There had been reports that the West Saanich Road improvements are being undertaken to provide an alternate route to Patricia Bay and Swartz Bay air and sea terminals so the Pat Bay Highway could be improved.

Mr. Tisdalle said he has been unable to learn from Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi, if or when a four-lane route will be developed.

The Pat Bay Highway is known as Highway 17 and the West Saanich route as Highway 17A.

Mr. Tisdalle said he hopes a survey will be made this year which would lead to developing 17A so that it will provide an improved connection with Swartz Bay by way of Deep Cove and Landsend Road.

VIA BURNSIDE

The same survey would study route improvements in the south to encourage traffic flows from 17A along Wilkinson Road and Interurban Road, entering the city via Burnside, he said.

This would provide a complete scenic highway loop around the Saanich Peninsula, he added.

A highways department spokesman said the present work on West Saanich Road involves an outlay of about $60,000 this year. Repaving and widening will take place over a 6½-mile length near Little Saanich Mountain, he added.

PARALLEL ROAD

The spokesman said there is no indication when four lanes would be created on Pat Bay Highway. He suggested when this does occur it probably will mean construction of a parallel highway reaching as far north as Keating Cross Road.

The route would then become a divided highway, he believed.

Resurfacing underway on West Saanich Road, near Little Saanich Mountain.

Traffic Death Trial Started In Assize Court

Assize Court trial of Hendrick Witteveen, 2721 Shelbourne, in connection with the traffic death of a pedestrian in January, opened today before Mr. Justice David Verchere.

The accused faces a three-count charge of criminal negligence, impaired driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

He was charged after the injury and subsequent death of Arthur Vincent Seear, 79, of 2042 Meadow, who was in collision with a car at Bay and Richmond New Year's Day.

Members of a jury were selected at the opening sitting at Victoria Law Courts.

Rotary Boys' Choir In Recital Friday

Vancouver Encampment No. 1, International Order of Odd Fellows, and Colfax Rebekah Lodge No. 1, will jointly sponsor a recital by Rotary Boys' Choir Friday at 8:15 p.m. in the Odd Fellows' Hall, 1323 Douglas Street.

Closing of Street Will Keep Trucks From City Centre

Evans, Coleman and Evans Limited today informed City Hall it wanted to close Mill Street so it could move its waterfront concrete operation to its new Rock Bay property.

City council last week decided to oppose the application to the land titles office for closure of the block-long street off Government.

Aldermen felt it was a needed traffic connection between Government and Bay.

But ECE manager D. E. Smith said closure of the street would allow the company to centralize its two operations and eliminate 300 daily trips by concrete-mix trucks through the downtown area.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Flying Ravens and Swans On Scandinavian Mobiles

By PENNY SAVER

Are you living in a modern apartment that still seems rather cold and austere? Or perhaps you still have a wedding present to buy for a young couple who have just moved into a sparsely furnished apartment. Whether for yourself, or your friends, an inexpensive mobile can add a point of interest to an otherwise dull room.

Five white swans representing the five Scandinavian countries gracefully glide through the air on one mobile Penny saw.

Another Danish design, made up of four black ravens, sells at the same price—$1.95.

Multi-colored linen tea towels have just about replaced the pictorial calendars that have long adorned kitchen walls. If you would like to take last year's towel down and use it for drying there are many new ones to choose from in the same store. Sizes and prices vary depending on whether it is from Sweden, Denmark, Scotland or Ireland. Prices range between $1.25 and $2.50. This is something else you might like to consider for a shower gift.

And if it is a linen shower you have been invited to Penny suggests you visit this shop and ask to see their plain colored Irish linen place mats with napkins to match. The joy of these is that you don't have to buy a whole set, you can buy as many or as few as you like. They are all 95 cents each. And since it is a regular stock you can add to your supply at a later date.

There are many colors to choose from and all are machine washable. It is recommended that you use a pure soap flake and not a detergent as many of these products have a "brighter white" ingredient which can alter the shade of brightly colored linens or cottons.

Glassware has a way of mysteriously disappearing, so a new supply is always appreciated. Before you rush off to buy crystal be sure to look at the Copenhagen glasses that sell for one dollar.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Spring Brings Thoughts Of Love . . . and 'the Virus'

Lowman

Now that we are well into the season known as spring, when, as the Bard observed, "a young man's fancy turns to love" many of us become increasingly aware that this isn't all spring represents by any means.

For this season, with its warmer varying weather, pussy willows and other signs too well known to mention, can just as readily serve as a booby-trap is diguise.

Winter goes! Spring comes! And we succumb to its magic spell almost immediately.

We open the windows. We dress more lightly—too lightly in many cases—and otherwise fail to remember that spring can often be a tricky proposition, fraught with climactic changes. The result: frequently we find ourselves in bed with what has been termed at various times the grippe, flu or "the virus."

This result isn't at all necessary if we will remember a few standard rules: 1. Dress in keeping with the weather and not the so-called season. 2. Follow a well-balanced diet. 3. Drink plenty of liquids. 4. Avoid fatigue at any cost.

These cardinal rules, if followed sensibly, will avoid the dejection which generally follows the winter doldrums. The last is the most difficult to follow.

Rest is of particular importance at this time of the year and an eight-hour quota of sleep should be the minimum requirement. This should and can be mandatory and not just a matter of thinking, "I'll try and get eight hours."

A good night's rest may mean the sacrifice of a favorite late television program or a bridge game, but in the long run, (and to quote the Bard again), "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Put it all together and "All's well that ends well." Try this formula and keep well. Guard your health and that of your family. The small effort made in this direction will produce results more than justified.

Go ahead...ask him
if the house has a Canada Life Mortgage Protection Policy

In the interest of your family's security you should know. Your husband may not realize that a Canada Life Mortgage Protection Policy takes such a small amount of money. He may not have had the time to arrange for this solid protection for you, for your home, for your family. Your Canada Life man will be most happy to give you both all the information you need. So go ahead—ask him!

DEAR ABBY . . .

Bygones Are Bygones!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband owns three houses in the block where we live. When he purchased these houses we learned that his ex-wife and her second husband were living in one of them. I know there is nothing between my husband and his ex-wife any more, but every time I run into her the funniest feeling comes over me. I hate to tell my husband to ask them to move when their lease runs out in August because they are good tenants, pay their rent on time, have no children and keep our property nice. But, Abby, I don't like seeing a woman almost every day who was once married to my husband. What should I do.

BIG PROBLEM.

DEAR BIG: Don't ask your husband to ask them to move. If they were replaced by less desirable tenants, you'd never hear the end of it. This woman is part of the past. The past is dead. Bury it!

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl who just loves to dance. There are more girls than boys at our school, so if a girl doesn't cut in on another girl who's dancing with a boy, some girls never get a chance to dance. I was wondering, when a girl wants to cut in on another girl so she can dance with a boy, whose shoulder should she tap? The boy's or the girl's?

LOVES TO DANCE.

DEAR LOVES: I don't advise a girl to cut in on another girl in order to dance with a boy, but she should tap the shoulder of the one she wants to sit down. You'd better get this straight, or you could wind up dancing with the girl.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to mothers to tell their married daughters to stay home — LEARN to get along with their husbands and raise their own children — should have been printed on the front page! I let my married daughter "come home" when she and her husband quarreled. Now I'm raising her two kiddies while she is running around having a good time. If I didn't let her come home, she might not have been so quick to leave her husband. I made it too easy for her.

TIRED MOM.

Stop worrying. Write to Abby. For a personal reply enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

By OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Service

The official bidding in this hand of the intercollegiate tournament conducted by the American Playing Card Manufacturers provides that South become declarer at two spades.

North and South can still get a bidding par by stopping at one no-trump, by going to three spades if opponents get into the bidding and push them, or by letting the opponents play any contract higher than two spades.

The points for play are awarded to the defence. West is directed to open the ace of clubs and continue with the nine spot and it is up to East to make the key play.

He will have two club tricks in and will be sure that he can give his partner a ruff for a third trick. His two aces will make five tricks and his problem is to find a sixth trick.

That sixth trick can't come in hearts or in clubs, but it can come in diamonds if East can get to ruff a diamond. East must get ready by leading the ace and another diamond. Declarer will lead trumps and East must grab the first trump lead and play a club. West will ruff and return a diamond for the sixth and setting trick.

"FOREST" CEDAR SIDING

A new cedar specialty for Beauty Long Life Economy

• • •

What is "FOREST" Siding?

A new and attractive type of siding that comes from specially selected cedar logs sawn to bring out all the distinctive character of knots, burls and grain.

How Does "FOREST" compare with other siding?

It has more thickness, greater wood volume to add structural strength to any building. Its snug fitting makes good insulation and its low cost makes it ideal for modest budget home builders or remodelers.

How to finish "FOREST"

"Forest" has a distinctive horizontal shadow line that will enhance the beauty of your home.

If you wish to preserve the natural rustic effect of "Forest" apply a coat of oil filler first, then varnish or shellac. "Forest" siding also takes paint beautifully if you wish a colored finish.

YOU can easily apply "FOREST" cedar siding

Many home owners have applied this modern, beautiful "Forest" siding themselves without the slightest difficulty.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The fourth annual TV Guide award presentations were thankfully kept short Sunday.

A spokesman for TV Guide magazine said the winners were determined by a vote of 400,000 readers. It made one wonder at the tastes of viewers.

Stephen

It could be summed up in the words of the producer of the oater Bonanza, who picked up the cup for the favorite series and said: "Twice in a row is kind of crazy."

Crazier still was the cup presentation to Bob Hope for the Bob Hope Christmas Show which won the award for the best single dramatic, musical or variety program. The show was panned as a hodge-podge of visits to American outposts which offered nothing.

The show won over The Cardinal Act of Mercy on a Ben Casey episode, The Danny Kaye Show, Peter Pan and Pygmalion.

Carol Burnett was chosen as favorite female performer, while Richard Chamberlain of the Dr. Kildare series was named as the male counterpart.

The award for the favorite new series went to The Beverly Hillbillies (as expected) with the whole Clampett clan, made up of Buddy Ebsen, Irene Ryan, Max Baer and Donna Douglas, accepting the award.

The other awards were:

Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color—best children's series.

The Tunnel—the best single news or information show.

The Huntley-Brinkley Report—best news series.

Prior to the short awards ceremony, Hope, with guests Dean Martin and Martha Raye, spoofed doctor shows, ratings and current news.

Here are samples:

Hope on the proposed hot line between Washington and Moscow: "The line will cost $7,000,000 . . . that's a lot of money just to hear a shoe bang the table. We sold them on the idea by telling them it was a party-line."

Dean Martin and Hope in a satire of congressional hearings into TV ratings.

"Do you know you're under oath?"

Martin: "I might. Hum a few bars."

Hope and Martha Raye had fun with cracks at the number of doctor shows on the air.

Said Martha (as Nurse Nightingale): "My series is so authentic it makes them sick to watch it."

The show was light-hearted and funny despite differences of opinion over award winners.

* * *

The highlight of the Easter Weekend programs was the intimate tour of Vatican City by ABC-TV cameras.

The program dealt with the working day on the 108-acre sovereign state. For the first time, viewers were given the human side of the tour of the papal city rather than overburdening the show with the pageantry of historic ceremonies and rites.

The short interview with Pope John was simple but effective. The Pontiff's humanism and warmth projected strongly as he spoke with ABC's John Casserly.

His final message on the great cause of peace was timely, following as it did his 20,000-word encyclical on the subject a week ago.

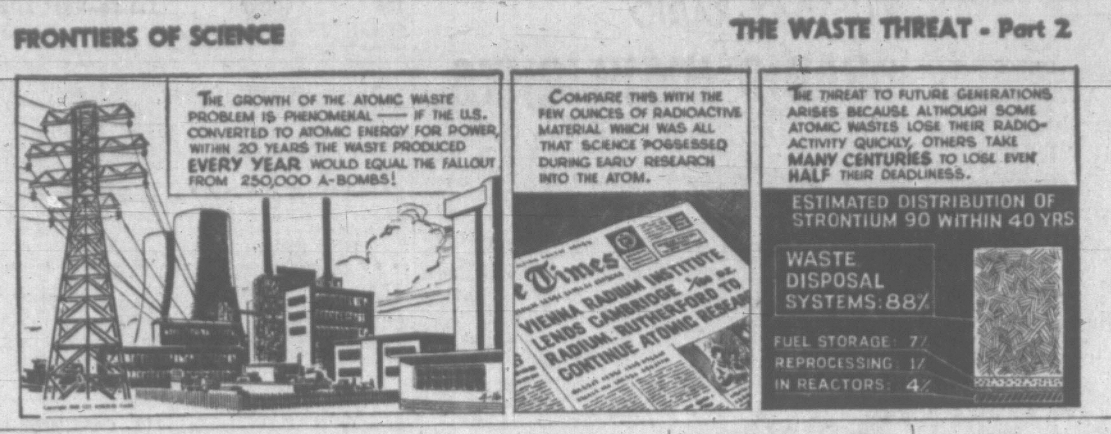
THE WASTE THREAT - Part 2



THE GROWTH OF THE ATOMIC WASTE PROBLEM IS PHENOMENAL — IF THE U.S. CONVERTED TO ATOMIC ENERGY FOR POWER, WITHIN 20 YEARS THE WASTE PRODUCED EVERY YEAR WOULD EQUAL THE FALLOUT FROM 250,000 A-BOMBS!

'Sky the Limit' For Old-Timers

By JEAN BAIN

DUNCAN—Browsing through the local library, I came across an interesting book entitled "The Vanishing Logger," written by Emil Engstrom, a Swedish-American, who worked on the West Coast of Canada and the United States as a logger from the turn of the century until the middle of the Second World War.

In 1914 several logging camps on the West Coast were closing down, but the wages in B.C. were better than those in the States, so Mr. Engstrom went to work for the Menzies Bay camp on a $4-a-day bucking job.

This operation, located on the eastern shore of Vancouver Island, about 20 miles up the coast from Campbell River (or Campbell as it was called then), was one of the largest in B.C.

Engstrom travelled to the camp from Vancouver on the Cowichan Line, which was "an old derelict" steamer.

He describes the camp site as follows: The cookhouse and dining room stood on short pilings by the shore, the sea lapping under the dining room when the tide came in. There were two bunkhouses farther up from the beach. They were built to house the logging crew, more than 100 men.

Lined along the four walls, the bunks stood three tiers high in one bunkhouse and four tiers in the other. The bunkhouses were new and built in modern style.

It is interesting to compare the logging operations in this particular camp, and the loggers employed, with the present day. Apparently, overalls could be worn into rags in one or two days by a hard-working chokerman.

"But not at the company's expense," writes Engstrom. "We paid 50 cents for a pair of overalls in the States. The price in this camp was one 'beaver skin' (one paper dollar bill) or two silver half-dollars. If the camps could make no money logging, they might make some in the camp commissary."

When the loggers were finished work, they would usually go to Campbell, where it seems "with nothing else to pass the time, gambling ran wild."

Engstrom had never seen such games in any other logging camps. The stakes in draw poker games ran anywhere from 25 cents to $1 and "the sky was the limit."

One type of logger employed in those days was a "PF" man, whose duty was to fasten a long string of logs together with "dogs," or sharp steel hooks, on the skidroad. He then rode behind this string of logs down to the landing where the logs were dumped into the sea on a "pig," on which he carried all the tools he needed. The "pig" was a big log split with its centre hollowed out.

The "PF" man at the Menzies Bay camp had a friend, a Negro, who worked building skidrods and tending hook.

Engstrom writes that one day, the two of them decided "for a lark" not to wash or change their clothes.

"It didn't matter how drenched with rain they were at the end of the day," Engstrom noted. "They wouldn't take anything off. They wore their woollen underwear until the dirty rags threatened to fall off; then they bought new white underwear and put it on top."

The two became so black with dirt that it was difficult to distinguish the "PF" man from the Negro and the pair were soon nicknamed "The Gold Dust Twins," because the trade mark on a popular powdered soap at the time was two black Negro children.

★ ★ ★

The joke went on for about six weeks.

"Loggers were not as dirty as some people may think they were. 'The Gold Dust Twins' were the camp's clowns and perhaps were tolerated for that reason," said Engstrom.

Liberals to Seek Kamloops Recount

VANCOUVER (CP)—Jack Taggart, provincial co-chairman of the Liberal campaign committee in last week's federal election, said Monday night the party will seek a judicial recount in Kamloops riding unless the present situation is altered drastically in the official count.

Complete unofficial results from the riding's 230 polls gave Liberal Jarl Whist 158 fewer votes than Progressive Conservative candidate Dr. C. J. M. Willoughby.

Mr. Taggart said the official count in the riding began Monday and probably will be finished later this week. The Liberals would then have four days to ask for a recount.

Earlier Monday, Mr. Whist said an announcement by returning officer Helen Millward that several ballots printed for use in the election omitted the Social Credit candidate's name would have no bearing on a decision for a recount.

"Naturally we are interested to know how many of these ballots were cast and the legal interpretation thereof," he said, "but the main decision will stem from the decisive service vote that narrowed the gap between Dr. Willoughby and myself."

The service vote roughly halved Dr. Willoughby's plurality in the four-way fight.

Vet Dies In Vancouver

Victoria-raised William A. Moore, 40, a veteran of the Japanese siege of Hong Kong 22 years ago, died Monday in Vancouver where he had lived since the Second World War.

He was a fire-fighter for the Vancouver fire department and active in union affairs.

Mr. Moore lived at 4438 Valencia, North Vancouver, where the widow, Marjorie, and four children survive.

The veteran went to Sir James Douglas and Victoria High Schools before joining the army.

After transferring to the Winnipeg Grenadiers, a rifle unit, he served in Jamaica and Bermuda, returned to Canada and went with the unit when it was sent to the British garrison a Hong Kong in September, 1941, where he was wounded.

The city fell at Christmas and Mr. Moore was one of the prisoners who spent the rest of the war behind Japanese wire.

JAMBOREE AT MARATHON FOR 14,000 SCOUTS

Old Battlefield to Swarm Again

ATHENS (Reuters) — The Plains of Marathon, where a decisive battle was fought between the mighty Greek and Persian armies 25 centuries ago, will be invaded again in July.

Some 14,000 Boy Scouts from 70 nations, including Canada, will camp on the Beach of Schinias, 28 miles northeast of Athens, during the 11th world jamboree scheduled July 29 to Aug. 11.

The aim of the jamboree is to "unite the youth of the world, strengthen ties of friendship, promote understanding and forge world peace."

King Paul of Greece will be patron of the jamboree, and Crown Prince Constantine, 23, as chief of the Boy Scout movement in Greece, is expected to preside over most of the meetings.

It is estimated the jamboree will cost some $2,800,000 and half of this sum is being contributed by the Greek government.

$47 FEE

The camp fee has been fixed at $47 for each scout. That will include food for the duration of the jamboree, transportation from Athens to the camp, medical attention, a jamboree badge and camp equipment.

The jamboree camp, to be set up around a bay in the Marathon Plains, will be divided into 11 sub-camps of approximately 1,200 campers each. The sub-camps will be named after the tribes which fought by the side of the Athenians against the Persians in the Battle of Marathon 2,500 years ago.

To ensure that scouts of the various nationalities mix as much as possible, the organizing committee has ruled that, in each sub-camp, Greek scout troops will play host to their brother scouts belonging to foreign contingents.

Particular attention is being paid to health. All scouts must have a thorough medical examination just before they leave their respective countries.

The Greek armed forces will set up a 100-bed hospital and there will be first aid posts staffed by qualified doctors and nurses. In addition, arrangements are being made with civilian hospitals in Athens to take care of any emergency.

RELIGIOUS ACTIVITY

Jamboree chaplains and priests will co-ordinate all religious activities within the camp and be available for consultation at any time.

The Greek foreign ministry has instructed all Greek consular authorities that scouts coming to the jamboree will be exempt from the payment of visa fees for entry into Greece. The government also is making a substantial reduction in fares by land and sea on passenger craft of Greek ownership.

During their stay in the camp, the scouts will have the opportunity to attend events which includes games of skill, demonstrations of scout-craft, athletics, field games, swimming and visits to archeological sites.

Talk on Gardens

An illustrated lecture on "arboretum and botanical gardens of Europe" will be given by Dr. T. M. C. Taylor of the department of biology and botany, UBC, at the annual meeting of the Arboretum Society of the Pacific Northwest Wednesday.

The meeting will be held in room 106, Paul Building, Lansdowne Campus, Victoria College, starting at 8 p.m.

PET POINTS

By Dr. J. R. Emas

Do Dogs Communicate With Each Other?

Yes. They have no language as such, of course, but they do communicate via barking and other sounds.

* * *

CLINIC: Q. "Our dog, Matty, gets very nervous when we take him driving. I know that tranquillizers often are recommended for this condition, but isn't there a way of curing the problem instead of soothing it?"

M.K.L., Bronx, N.Y.

A. Some dogs can be trained to overcome their fear of cars and motion. Try this method: Next time Matty acts up in the car, stop immediately, take him out, and walk him until he's calm again. When he's calm, put him in the car again. Try this procedure for several days in succession. It may cure him of his nervousness. If it doesn't, you'd better see your veterinarian about those tranquilizers.

CLINIC: Q. "Ladybird, our pet parakeet, seems bent on hurting herself. She sits and plucks at her feathers all day long. What should I do?"

Mrs. K.I.Y., Pittsburgh, Pa.

A. Ladybird probably needs a lady friend, or some one or thing to divert her. When parakeets pull at their feathers, it's a good sign that they're bored. Try buying her some cage toys or a plastic bird. More important, give her more of your time and attention. If the plucking persists, check with your veterinarian for other possible causes—such as vitamin deficiencies or parasitic conditions.

CLINIC: Q. "A neighbor is giving our young daughter a kitten from her cat's next litter. Can you please tell me what one feeds a kitten?" Mrs. L.R., Jr., Hot Springs, Ark.

A. If your kitten is less than six weeks old, consult your veterinarian for a proper formula to substitute for the mother's milk. If your kitten is older than six weeks, feed her four-six times daily with evaporated milk, minced prime raw meat, vitamins and a milk-egg pudding.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jo Ann Payton, 17, Hayneville, Ala., for her question:

How Did They Figure the Atomic Numbers?

The Atomic Age is a gift from the science of physics. It grew gradually through centuries as men probed into the nature of matter. In the past 100 years, many scientists from different nations added scraps of knowledge about the atoms from which all substances are made. We now have an orderly picture of these atomic elements.

The Periodic Table of Elements gives the basic data on more than 100 different atoms. In the 1800s, scientists knew of only 50 of these elements. They sorted them into classes, such as metals and non-metals, and compared their weights. In 1869, Dimitri Mendeleev arranged the known elements in a chart of rows and columns which made him known as the great-grandfather of our Periodic Table.

Mendeleev placed elements that were similar in chemical nature in the same column. The hard, glossy elements, copper, silver and gold, were listed one below the other, each heavier than the one above it. An orderly picture emerged with each element having its own atomic weight.

More elements were discovered and placed in their slots in the Periodic Table. In the 20th century, the atom probers used X-rays and saw that the wave length of each element is one degree less than the next. Then the electrical nature of the atom was discovered. Between 1911 and 1913, it was found that each atom is made mostly from electrical particles.

Atomic Pattern Revealed

Rutherford of England found that the bulk of the atom is in the central nucleus. Bohr of Denmark suggested that the massive nucleus is in the centre, amid one or more outer electrons. Moseley of England found that the proton particles of the nucleus carry a charge of positive electricity, and each electron carries an equal charge of negative electricity.

This information soon revealed another orderly atomic pattern. Each element on the Peroidic Table progresses by one proton. The number of protons in the nucleus of an atom is, of course, the atomic number of an element. Hydrogen, with one proton, is atomic number one; helium, with two protons, is atomic number two.

In a neutral atom, the number of swarming electrons equals and balances the number of protons in its nucleus. The atomic number then reveals the number of electrons in an element. This information is vital to the chemist, because the number of electrons tends to determine the formation of chemical compounds, such as salt and sugar.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Connie Du Vall, age 12, of Mount Vernon, Wash., for her question:

How hot is a flash of lightning?

The more powerful flashes of lightning, it is estimated, may be as hot as 30,000 centigrade degrees. This is 10 times hotter than the temperature needed for a bar of iron to boil away as vapor. Part of this seething energy is unleashed when lightning strikes an object on the earth.

Sensible people use every means to protect themselves from the real dangers that lurk in the flashing lightning of a thunderstorm. Buildings, large and small, should be fitted with rods, called lightning rods, to attract the flashes and guide their searing energy safely down into the ground.

JAPANESE POACHING

VANCOUVER (CP) — Capt. Edgar Arnett, skipper of the Attu, first boat to return from the Bering Sea halibut grounds this season, said Monday he spotted a Japanese fishing fleet poaching in the area.

He said the United States coast guard has asked all Canadian and U.S. vessels to report any incidents with Japanese vessels.

Japan is restricted from fishing halibut in the area under a Canadian-American-Japanese treaty.

The U.S. and Japan have approved an amendment to the treaty allowing Japan to fish the area but the Canadian government has not approved it.

One American friend said, "Some French girls find single men more attractive—even if they're your ex-husband."

4-YEAR-OLD LIT FIRE THAT KILLED INVALID

PORTLAND, Ind. (AP)—A four-year-old boy has admitted starting a house fire which killed a young invalid woman, authorities said today.

The youngster admitted pouring kerosene on a kitchen table and in front of the chair in which the woman sat watching, paralyzed, then tossing a match into the liquid, Fire Chief Meredith Sanders said.

Gaglardi Denies Any Favors Given to Road Contractors

Dief Keeps Mum

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Diefenbaker today announced he would be calling on Govenor-General Vanier at noon Wednesday, but he left doubts as to whether it would be to submit his resignation.

Assumptions by reporters that the visit was set for the purpose of Mr. Diefenbaker's resignation were "not well founded," the prime minister asserted.

But at the same time he indicated his resignation and that of his administration would be forthcoming, presumably later in the week—on Thursday or Friday.

It appeared the prime minister was working towards a Friday or Monday deadline for the turnover of power to a Liberal government under Lester B. Pearson. This, it was understood, was by informal agreement with Mr. Pearson. Liberal sources said a Monday takeover was what they were aiming for, although Mr. Pearson probably would be ready to install a full cabinet by Friday.

Other Factors

Other factors slowing down the shift in government included the necessity for members of the Diefenbaker cabinet to clean out their offices and remove personal papers from files.

It also has been learned that an Ottawa cartage company has been retained to move Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker's personal belongings from the prime minister's official residence, 24 Sussex Drive, on Wednesday. The belongings would be placed in storage until the Pearsons moved out of the official opposition leader's residence, Tornaway, in the fashionable suburban Rockcliffe district, and into 24 Sussex.

This morning Mr. Diefenbaker announced, as he was entering a cabinet meeting, that he would be seeing the governor-general at noon Wednesday (this clarified his Monday statement that he expected to see His Excellency either today or Wednesday.)

On the basis of his announcement today it was assumed that he would be submitting his resignation at noon Wednesday. But he also said there would be a cabinet meeting Wednesday afternoon, after the visit to the governor-general.

Shows Surprise

As Mr. Diefenbaker came out of cabinet in the early afternoon, reporters sought further clarification. Did the cabinet meeting following the visit to Government House indicate he would be submitting a "post-dated" resignation?

The prime minister seemed surprised by the question, replying that he would have to understand the implications of the question before answering.

Reporters then said they gathered from his earlier statements that he would be resigning at noon Wednesday.

"That's what you wrote," he said sharply to the questioning

ON THE STAND for first time today, Highways Minister Gaglardi, left, peruses documents with Lloyd McKenzie, counsel for highway probe.

'Accusers Smoke Opium Pipes'

By FRANK RUTTER

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi today flatly denied favoring contractors as he appeared in the witness box at the highway graft inquiry.

"He must have been smoking an opium pipe," Mr. Gaglardi said of a letter in which a contractor claimed he could make $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 through favors.

Mr. Gaglardi said there had been no preferential treatment as far as he knew in the award of Project 819 to L and M Logging Co. in 1957.

This is the project which sparked the allegations of graft—from Montana contractor Dick Holzworth.

The highways minister also denied that he had given any favors to the contractors working on 819.

And he said it was "inconceivable" that the same group had been promised other contracts to make good their losses on 819.

Mr. Gaglardi denied any personal role in the payment of a $6,702 mortgage owed by a former employee of his department and member of his Kamloops church, Vincent L. Gresty.

He also testified that Mr. Gresty personally told him that he was not involved with subcontractors on the project while still a departmental employee. He said the highways department "couldn't find anything" about Mr. Gresty making money on the side through equipment rentals.

All Allegations Disproved

The highways minister appeared on the stand despite the contention of his lawyer, Angelo Branca, that all the allegations against him have been disproved in the past five weeks of the inquiry.

Mr. Branca termed Mr. Holzworth's allegations, contained in a sworn affidavit, as "irresponsible" and said they were made by "an irresponsible man."

Mr. Gaglardi appeared at the request of Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, who chairman Irvine Corbett (SC-Yale) should take the responsibility of summoning him.

The minister was to continue on the stand later today.

He will be followed by summation from Mr. Branca and inquiry counsel Lloyd G. McKenzie.

This means the inquiry, which had adjourned for a four-day Easter recess, could wind up Wednesday.

Mr. Gaglardi began by saying that L and M Logging had been awarded the 819 contract on the advice of his deputy minister and chief engineer.

Deputy '100% Above Board'

He said the deputy, Evan Jones, had decided to give the company extra time to come up with a proper bond for the job, after its original bid bond was found invalid.

The bond, earlier evidence showed, had been issued to another company, H. W. Galbraith, and was not meant for Project 819.

Mr. Gaglardi said he was sure Mr. Jones was "100 per cent above board."

He also said he discussed the contract award with the deputy minister of public works in Ottawa because it was a Trans-Canada Highway project.

He said B.C. went ahead with the contract with L and M after "clarification" of questions from Ottawa. He said the go-ahead would not have been given without Ottawa's approval.

Protests about the award from the Heavy Construction Association of B.C., he said, were probably because L and M was not a member of the association, while all the other bidders were.

Mr. Gaglardi said he had often had representations from contractors to award contracts to second low bidders. But his policy was to grant them to the low bidder provided everything was in order.

"If I would bend one iota I would be in a very difficult position," Mr. Gaglardi said.

Unaware of Changes In Figures

Two of Mr. Holzworth's allegations were about changes in figures on progress estimate sheets submitted to Victoria on Project 819.

The contractor charged that the government paid $135,000 for work that was never done.

Mr. Gaglardi today said that he was unaware of the changes in figures. The first he heard of them, he said, was when a reporter phoned him in Chicago at 3 a.m. in February this year.

The minister said that Burton Lymburner, the president of L and M initially, "at no time" received advantages from the highways department.

Clyde W. Thornton, the vice-president of the firm that succeeded L and M, Union Contractors, also never received any assurances, Mr. Gaglardi said.

It was Mr. Thornton who wrote the "Friend Dick" letter to Mr. Holzworth saying that the department had promised "every break in the world" and "liberal treatment" on a new contract that would make $2,000,000 to $3,000,000.

Mr. Gaglardi said the letter must have been "propaganda"—as Mr. Thornton testified it was.

Mr. Holzworth also alleged the mortgage was paid off by

Cuban Exile Leader Draws U.S. Rebuke

CARDONA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has rebuked Cuban exile leader Jose Miro Cardona for his purported bitter denunciation of U.S. policy toward Cuba.

In doing so, the government made public for the first time Monday what has been rumored for days: That Miro had demanded a voice in U.S. policy toward Cuba—or else $50,000,000 to mount an exile expedition against Premier Fidel Castro.

The U.S. government is not prepared to make any such agreements, the state department said. It took this position in a rejoinder to Miro's reported criticism of U.S.-Cuban policy in his 20-page letter of resignation as president of the Cuban Revolutionary Council.

The Miro letter never has been made public. But enough informed descriptions of the letter were in the air for the state department to turn loose its strong statement.

Informed of the state department comments, Miro said Monday night of his letter:

"I told the truth. I do not tell lies.

"I have never asked a second invasion. I have asked for hemispheric co-operation for joint military action."

Sources who claim to have studied the letter say it includes:

A detailed account of Miro's relations with the U.S. government—including President Kennedy—since the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion of 1961.

Charges the United States reneged on promises to act against Castro; promises including a second invasion.

Complaints that the United States has embarked on a course of coexistence toward the Soviet satellite in the Caribbean.

In general, a protest at lack of U.S. support for action against Castro.

The council still hasn't accepted Miro's resignation and has planned a formal meeting for tonight to decide its course.

Bond Theft Witness Believed Suicide

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—William George Dales, 56, who police believe was swept to his death over the Horseshoe Falls here Monday, was scheduled to appear in a Vancouver court Friday to testify at a hearing involving a $837,000 bond theft in 1959 from the St. Catharines' Trust Company he managed.

His wife reported him missing earlier Monday after he failed to return home from a drive to a service station.

Police said Dales, who had been in failing health, was to have flown to Vancouver today to be a witness at the preliminary hearing of Daniel Henry Derkson, 33, a plasterer charged with possession of stolen property.

Derkson was arrested in a Vancouver cocktail bar March 21 after a bank reported it had accepted $7,000 in government bonds as collateral for a loan.

It is alleged the bonds were stolen from the St. Catherines office of the Premier Trust Company Feb. 1, 1959, when thieves using oxy-acetylene equipment looted vaults and safety deposit boxes.

Dales was a former member of the St. Catherines board of education.

His abandoned car was found near a parapet overlooking the falls, where tourists watched in horror as a man leaped into the roaring river.

It is impossible for police to drag the river below the 167-foot falls where millions of gallons of water every second crash down on to jagged rocks.

Police say it is generally seven or eight days before bodies [illegible] into the river. A watch will be maintained.

Blonde Makes Risky Swim Both Ways

MESSINA, Sicily (AP)—A 25-year-old strawberry blonde from Detroit today became the first person to swim the swirling, shark-infested waters of the Strait of Messina to Calabria and back.

Mary Margaret Revell said afterward she suffered such cramps in the cold waters that she took a more direct route than anticipated and that the [illegible] plans helped her accomplish the feat which no man nor woman ever had done before. Numerous men have conquered the dreaded expanse of cold, racing waters in the past. But no swimmer ever had made a round trip.

Time was five hours, 28 minutes.

Miss Ravell swam without the usual heavy coating of grease. A quartet of skin-divers swam near her to fight off sharks. None was seen, however.

RAINS CONTINUE TO SOAK HAWAII; TWO FEARED DEAD

HONOLULU (AP) — Hundreds of Hawaiians are homeless and at least two persons missing as driving tropical rains continued today to drench the island chain, feeding rampaging mountain streams on Oahu and Kauai islands.

The weather bureau forecast offered little hope for a let-up in the rains that have hammered the islands almost steadily for a week.

Civil defence officials and police said Monday that damage—mostly to homes—would total more than $5,000,000.

The tiny island of Kauai, northernmost in the archipelago, was hardest hit. The windward section of Oahu suffered heavy damage to homes.

Kauai police said an estimated 400 persons were forced from their homes in the plantation community of Hanapepe, on the southern coast.

On Oahu, 18 inches of rain was dumped into Kahaluu Valley on the island's windward side in six hours Monday, the weather bureau said.

An army lieutenant-colonel and a sergeant major were lost and feared drowned in the mountains near Honolulu. They vanished when surging waters pulled their jeeps into an overflowing stream.

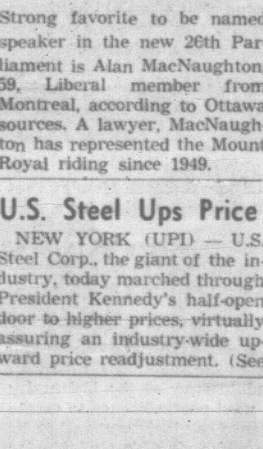
Caouette Denies Bribe Reports



NEW SPEAKER?

Strong favorite to be named speaker in the new 26th Parliament is Alan MacNaughton, 59, Liberal member from Montreal, according to Ottawa sources. A lawyer, MacNaughton has represented the Mount Royal riding since 1949.

OTTAWA (CP) — Deputy leader Real Caouette of the Social Credit party said today he does not believe any of his followers were offered financial rewards to support the new Liberal government.

He made the statement just before a caucus of the Quebec wing of his party, held in the Parliament Building.

Party leader Robert Thompson said Monday that he had heard some Social Credit MPs from Quebec had been offered "a rather handsome remuneration" to join the Liberal party.

Liberal National Director Keith Davey said he has no knowledge of any such offers by his party to Social Credit MPs.

Meanwhile the Quebec and western wings of the party is holding separate but crucial meetings today in an atmosphere charged by dissension.

Mr. Caouette and the 19 other Social Credit MPs from Quebec were planning a caucus in the Parliament Buildings this afternoon, while Mr. Thompson was to meet his western lieutenants in Red Deer, Alta., tonight and Wednesday.

Party officials said two caucuses are being held instead of one to save travel expenses and time. Mr. Thompson said he will not return to Ottawa until after a two-week holiday.

But already he has received begging letters asking for a total of $32,000 of his prize money.

Said his wife today: "I'm amazed at some of the requests people have made."

And in Vancouver another $150,000 prize-winner, Mrs. Edna Imler, said she wouldn't have bought the sweepstake ticket if she had known the trouble it would bring her.

Mrs. Imler said she and her husband have been plagued by hundreds of begging letters and telephone calls.

The letters received by Mr. Johnston, a 68-year-old Victoria auctioneer's assistant, range from one from a man who said he lost all his money playing the horses to a request from an Ontario woman for money to attend her son's graduation in British Columbia.

Most of the requests have come from either Vancouver or Quebec.

Said Mrs. Johston: "Victoria people haven't bothered us very much."

GENUINE

Many people write to say they need money because they are sick.

"We'd like to help," said Mrs. Johnston. "But how can we tell if the letters are genuine?"

The Johnstons have decided that if anyone is going to get a share of their money it will be their relatives. And later this year they may use part of their winnings to travel to eastern Canada and the United States.

Mr. Johnston won't discuss the requests. He was working at Lunds' Auctioneers when a Times reporter arrived this morning to ask him about them.

Mr. Johnston didn't even stop work. "No comment," was all he said.

The Vancouver winners took a week's holiday when they won. Now Mrs. Imler is thinking of going away again if the begging doesn't stop.

"These people don't want a little. They want a whole lot of money. If you kept on giving it away like that you'd have none left."

The demands have ranged from one by an elderly couple for money to buy a car to drive around in their old age to a call from a nurse for $700 to bring her son from Poland.

CHRYSLER CAR SALES UP 46 PER CENT

CENTER LINE, Mich. (UPI) — Chrysler president Lynn A. Townsend told shareholders today retail sales of the firm's cars for the first quarter of 1963 were up 46 per cent over the same period a year ago.

Sales of Chrysler-built cars in the first three months of this year totaled 209,255. That was 12.2 per cent of the market, Townsend said, and an increase of 3 per cent in share market over the same period last year.

Drillers Promise To Guard Scenery

PORTLAND (AP)—A vice-president of Shell Oil Company promised Monday not to hurt fishing or damage the scenery as his company looks for oil off the Oregon coast.

The pledge was given by S. F. Bowlby, in charge of exploration and production for Shell on the Pacific Coast. He spoke before the Portland Chamber of Commerce public forum.

Bowlby said the company will use its 20 years of experience and the most advanced equipment and techniques available in continuing the search along the Continental shelf.

Weston's Earnings Soar

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Earnings and sales of George Weston Ltd. were the highest in history during 1962, according to president George C. Metcalf.

Gordon Bell

Net profit increased 35 per cent to a record $11,531,167 and net per common share was $1.03 compared with 90 cents in 1961. In 1962, 1,794,608 shares were issued in exchange for all the outstanding shares of Eddy Paper Co. whose accounts are consolidated in the Weston report.

Mr. Metcalf said current operations point to another year of notable achievement during 1963. Considerable progress is being made, he said, toward consolidating all subsidiaries in the annual report.

The "tremendous growth potential" of Eddy Paper will contribute to Weston's profit performance to a steadily increasing degree in the years to come, he said.

Net earnings of $879,360 last year were disclosed in the annual report of Western Pacific Products and Crude Oil Pipelines Ltd.

Average deliveries for the year over the 505-mile line from Taylor to Kamloops were 21,218 barrels, although since October deliveries have been in excess of 30,000 barrels daily.

Largest order for sulphur ever sold by a Canadian company has been placed by the Australian sulphur purchasing agency.

During the year 75,000 long tons will be shipped through Vancouver by an export firm, Cansulex, which is jointly-owned by B.A. Oil Co. Ltd. and Petrogas Processing Ltd.

Heavy shipments of potash from the International Minerals and Chemical Corp. operation in Saskatchewan are also expected to go through the Vancouver port.

The first export potash warehouse in North America is being built by Vancouver Wharves Ltd. for IMC and the highly-automated $600,000 installation will be capable of loading ships at the rate of 1,200 tons an hour.

At peak operation it will take only four men to operate the whole stockpiling installation.

More than 100,000 tons of potash have moved through Vancouver since September and IMC estimates shipments will rise to 500,000 tons annually.

Grand Bahama Amusement Ltd. owned 20.9 per cent each by Lorada Uranium Mines Ltd. and Seven Arts Productions Ltd., has been granted permission to establish a gambling casino at its Royal Lucayan Hotel on Grand Bahama Island.

Grand Bahama Port Authority owns 50 per cent of the development and the balance is held by Seven Arts president Louis Chesler.

U.S. Steel Keeps Silent On Prices

NEW YORK (AP)—A pattern of selective price increases seemed to be taking shape today in the United States steel industry but there still was no word from the No. 1 producer, U.S. Steel Corporation.

Republic Steel Corporation, the third-ranking firm, fell into line with three smaller companies by posting boosts averaging $5.34 a ton on products that accounted for about one-fourth of 1962 sales.

The executive committee of U.S. Steel, which initiated last year's abortive price rise, was to meet in regular monthly session in New York today.

Few thought that higher prices fixed by Republic and Pittsburgh Steel Company Monday and two other companies earlier could stand up unless U.S. Steel went along.

ONE-QUARTER

Big Steel, as U.S. Steel is known in the trade, accounts for about a quarter of the American industry's tonnage.

President Kennedy last week conditionally approved increases on selected steel products but warned against a general price increase that could upset the country's economic stability.

Shortly before Republic's announcement, a congressional inquiry into steel prices, profits and production problems was ordered by Senator Paul H. Douglas, Illinois Democrat who is chairman of the joint congressional economic committee. Douglas said hearings will start next week.

REPUBLIC FIRST

Republic was the first among the 10 largest products to disclose pricing plans.

Kaiser Steel Corporation, which held back when other companies advanced prices in April, 1962, only to rescind the increases quickly under administration pressure, said it had reached "no conclusion" this time. Last fall, Kaiser, ninth-largest producer, cut its prices sharply.

Industry-wide production continued to soar, registering its 11th consecutive gain last week. The output of 2,464,000 ingot tons was the highest in three years.

NEW YORK (AP) — Armco Steel Corporation, sixth ranking producer, today became the fifth steelmaker to post higher prices on selected products, boosting items accounting for 38 per cent of sales.

REQUESTS TOTAL $32,000

'Beggars' Besiege Sweep Winners

Adam Johnston still hasn't received the $150,000 he won three weeks ago in the Irish sweepstakes.

But already he has received begging letters asking for a total of $32,000 of his prize money.

Said his wife today: "I'm amazed at some of the requests people have made."

And in Vancouver another $150,000 prize-winner, Mrs. Edna Imler, said she wouldn't have bought the sweepstake ticket if she had known the trouble it would bring her.

Mrs. Imler said she and her husband have been plagued by hundreds of begging letters and telephone calls.

The letters received by Mr. Johnston, a 68-year-old Victoria auctioneer's assistant, range from one from a man who said he lost all his money playing the horses to a request from an Ontario woman for money to attend her son's graduation in British Columbia.

ADAM JOHNSTON
. . . still waiting

Most of the requests have come from either Vancouver or Quebec.

Said Mrs. Johston: "Victoria people haven't bothered us very much."

GENUINE

Many people write to say they need money because they are sick.

"We'd like to help," said Mrs. Johnston. "But how can we tell if the letters are genuine?"

The Johnstons have decided that if anyone is going to get a share of their money it will be their relatives. And later this year they may use part of their winnings to travel to eastern Canada and the United States.

Mr. Johnston won't discuss the requests. He was working at Lunds' Auctioneers when a Times reporter arrived this morning to ask him about them.

Mr. Johnston didn't even stop work. "No comment," was all he said.

The Vancouver winners took a week's holiday when they won. Now Mrs. Imler is thinking of going away again if the begging doesn't stop.

"These people don't want a little. They want a whole lot of money. If you kept on giving it away like that you'd have none left."

The demands have ranged from one by an elderly couple for money to buy a car to drive around in their old age to a call from a nurse for $700 to bring her son from Poland.

GAGLARDI DENIES BUILDERS FAVORED

'Accusers Smoke Opium Pipes'

By FRANK RUTTER

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi today flatly denied favoring contractors as he appeared in the witness box at the highway graft inquiry.

"He must have been smoking an opium pipe," Mr. Gaglardi said of a letter in which a contractor claimed he could make $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 through favors.

Mr. Gaglardi said there had been no preferential treatment as far as he knew in the award of Project 819 to L and M Logging Co. in 1957.

This is the project which sparked the allegations of graft—from Montana contractor Dick Holzworth.

The highways minister also denied that he had given any favors to the contractors working on 819.

And he said it was "inconceivable" that the same group had been promised other contracts to make good their losses on 819.

Mr. Gaglardi denied any personal role in the payment of a $6,702 mortgage owed by a former employee of his department and member of his Kamloops church, Vincent L. Gresty.

He also testified that Mr. Gresty personally told him that he was not involved with subcontractors on the project while still a departmental employee. He said the highways department "couldn't find anything" about Mr. Gresty making money on the side through equipment rentals.

All Allegations Disproved

The highways minister appeared on the stand despite the contention of his lawyer, Angelo Branca, that all the allegations against him have been disproved in the past five weeks of the inquiry.

Mr. Branca termed Mr. Holzworth's allegations, contained in a sworn affidavit, as "irresponsible" and said they were made by "an irresponsible man."

Mr. Gaglardi appeared at the request of Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, who said chairman Irvine Corbett (SC-Yale) should take the responsibility of summoning him.

The minister was to continue on the stand later today.

He will be followed by summation from Mr. Branca and inquiry counsel Lloyd G. McKenzie.

This means the inquiry, which had adjourned for a four-day Easter recess, could wind up Wednesday.

Mr. Gaglardi began by saying that L and M Logging had been awarded the 819 contract on the advice of his deputy minister and chief engineer.

Deputy '100% Above Board'

He said the deputy, Evan Jones, had decided to give the company extra time to come up with a proper bond for the job, after its original bid bond was found invalid.

The bond, earlier evidence showed, had been issued to another company, H. W. Galbraith, and was not meant for Project 819.

Mr. Gaglardi said he was sure Mr. Jones was "100 per cent above board."

He also said he discussed the contract award with the deputy minister of public works in Ottawa because it was a Trans-Canada Highway project.

He said B.C. went ahead with the contract with L and M after "clarification" of questions from Ottawa. He said the goahead would not have been given without Ottawa's approval.

Protests about the award from the Heavy Construction Association of B.C., he said, were probably because L and M was not a member of the association, while all the other bidders were.

Mr. Gaglardi said he had often had representations from contractors to award contracts to second low bidders. But his policy was to grant them to the low bidder provided everything was in order.

"If I would bend one iota I would be in a very difficult position," Mr. Gaglardi said.

Unaware of Changes In Figures

Two of Mr. Holzworth's allegations were about changes in figures on progress estimate sheets submitted to Victoria on Project 819.

The contractor charged that the government paid $135,000 for work that was never done.

Mr. Gaglardi today said that he was unaware of the changes in figures. The first he heard of them, he said, was when a reporter phoned him in Chicago at 3 a.m. in February this year.

The minister said that Burton Lymburner, the president of L and M initially, "at no time" received advantages from the highways department.

Clyde W. Thornton, the vice-president of the firm that succeeded L and M, Union Contractors, also never received any assurances, Mr. Gaglardi said.

It was Mr. Thornton who wrote the "Friend Dick" letter to Mr. Holzworth saying that the department had promised "every break in the world" and "liberal treatment" on a new contract that would make $2,000,000 to $3,000,000.

Mr. Gaglardi said the letter must have been "propaganda"—as Mr. Thornton testified it was.

Mr. Holzworth also alleged the mortgage was paid off by

U.S. Rebukes Cuban Exile

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has rebuked Cuban exile leader Jose Miro Cardona for his purported bitter denunciation of U.S. policy toward Cuba.

In doing so, the government made public for the first time Monday what has been rumored for days: That Miro had demanded a voice in U.S. policy toward Cuba—or else $50,000,000 to mount an exile expedition against Premier Fidel Castro.

The U.S. government is not prepared to make any such agreements, the state department said. It took this position in a rejoinder to Miro's reported criticism of U.S.-Cuban policy in his 20-page letter of resignation as president of the Cuban Revolutionary Council.

The Miro letter never has been made public. But enough informed descriptions of the letter were in the air for the state department to turn loose its strong statement.

Informed of the state department comments, Miro said Monday night of his letter:

"I told the truth. I do not tell lies.

"I have never asked a second invasion. I have asked for hemispheric co-operation for joint military action."

Sources who claim to have studied the letter say it includes:

A detailed account of Miro's relations with the U.S. government—including President Kennedy—since the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion of 1961.

Charges the United States reneged on promises to act against Castro; promises including a second invasion.

Complaints that the United States has embarked on a course of coexistence toward the Soviet satellite in the Caribbean.

In general, a protest at lack of U.S. support for action against Castro.

The council still hasn't accepted Miro's resignation and has planned a formal meeting for tonight to decide its course.

DIEF KEEPS MUM

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Diefenbaker today announced he would be calling on Govenor-General Vanier at noon Wednesday, but he left doubts as to whether it would be to submit his resignation.

Assumptions by reporters that the visit was set for the purpose of Mr. Diefenbaker's resignation were "not well founded," the prime minister asserted.

But at the same time he indicated his resignation and that of his administration would be forthcoming, presumably later in the week—on Thursday or Friday.

It appeared the prime minister was working towards a Friday or Monday deadline for the turnover of power to a Liberal government under Lester B. Pearson. This, it was understood, was by informal agreement with Mr. Pearson. Liberal sources said a Monday takeover was what they were aiming for, although Mr. Pearson probably would be ready to install a full cabinet by Friday.

Other Factors

Other factors slowing down the shift in government included the necessity for members of the Diefenbaker cabinet to clean out their offices and remove personal papers from files.

It also has been learned that an Ottawa cartage company has been retained to move Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker's personal belongings from the prime minister's official residence, 24 Sussex Drive, on Wednesday. The belongings would be placed in storage until the Pearsons moved out of the official opposition leader's residence, Tornaway, in the fashionable suburban Rockcliffe district, and into 24 Sussex.

This morning Mr. Diefenbaker announced, as he was entering a cabinet meeting, that he would be seeing the governor-general at noon Wednesday (this clarified his Monday statement that he expected to see His Excellency either today or Wednesday.)

On the basis of his announcement today it was assumed that he would be submitting his resignation at noon Wednesday. But he also said there would be a cabinet meeting Wednesday afternoon, after the visit to the governor-general.

As Mr. Diefenbaker came out of cabinet in the early afternoon, reporters sought further clarification. Did the cabinet meeting following the visit to Government House indicate he would be submitting a "post-dated" resignation?

The prime minister seemed surprised by the question, replying that he would have to understand the implications of the question before answering.

Reporters then said they gathered from his earlier statements that he would be resigning at noon Wednesday.

"That's what you wrote," he said sharply to the questioning

Blonde Makes Risky Swim Both Ways

MESSINA, Sicily (AP)—A 25-year-old strawberry blonde from Detroit today became the first person to swim the swirling, shark-infested waters of the Strait of Messina to Calabria and back.

Mary Margaret Revell said afterward she suffered such cramps in the cold waters that she took a more direct route than anticipated and that the change in plans helped her accomplish the feat which no man nor woman ever had done before. Numerous men have conquered the dreaded expanse of cold, racing waters in the past. But no swimmer ever had made a round trip.

Time was five hours, 28 minutes.

Caouette Denies Bribe Reports

OTTAWA (CP) — Deputy leader Real Caouette of the Social Credit party said today he does not believe any of his followers were offered financial rewards to support the new Liberal government.

He made the statement just before a caucus of the Quebec wing of his party, held in the Parliament Building.

Party leader Robert Thompson said Monday that he had heard some Social Credit MPs from Quebec had been offered "a rather handsome remuneration" to join the Liberal party.

Liberal National Director Keith Davey said he has no knowledge of any such offers by his party to Social Credit MPs.

Meanwhile the Quebec and western wings of the party are holding separate but crucial meetings today in an atmosphere charged by dissension.

Mr. Caouette and the 19 other Social Credit MPs from Quebec were planning a caucus in the Parliament Buildings this afternoon, while Mr. Thompson was to meet his western lieutenants in Red Deer, Alta., tonight and Wednesday.

Party officials said two caucuses are being held instead of one to save travel expenses and time. Mr. Thompson said he will not return to Ottawa until after a two-week holiday.

NEW SPEAKER?

Strong favorite to be named speaker in the new 26th Parliament is Alan MacNaughton, 59, Liberal member from Montreal, according to Ottawa sources. A lawyer, MacNaughton has represented the Mount Royal riding since 1949.

RAINS CONTINUE TO SOAK HAWAII; TWO FEARED DEAD

HONOLULU (AP) — Hundreds of Hawaiians are homeless and at least two persons missing as driving tropical rains continued today to drench the island chain, feeding rampaging mountain streams on Oahu and Kauai islands.

The weather bureau forecast offered little hope for a let-up in the rains that have hammered the islands almost steadily for a week.

Civil defence officials and police said Monday that damage—mostly to homes—would total more than $5,000,000.

The tiny island of Kauai, northernmost in the archipelago, was hardest hit. The windward section of Oahu suffered heavy damage to homes.

Kauai police said an estimated 400 persons were forced from their homes in the plantation community of Hanapepe, on the southern coast.

On Oahu, 18 inches of rain was dumped into Kahaluu Valley on the island's windward side in six hours Monday, the weather bureau said.

An army lieutenant-colonel and a sergeant major were lost and feared drowned in the mountains near Honolulu. They vanished when surging waters pulled their jeeps into an overflowing stream.

Liberals to Seek Kamloops Recount

VANCOUVER (CP)—Jack Taggart, provincial co-chairman of the Liberal campaign committee in last week's federal election, said Monday night the party will seek a judicial recount in Kamloops riding unless the present situation is altered drastically in the official count.

Complete unofficial results from the riding's 230 polls gave Liberal Jarl Whist 158 fewer votes than Progressive Conservative candidate Dr. C. J. M. Willoughby.

Mr. Taggart said the official count in the riding began Monday and probably will be finished later this week. The Liberals would then have four days to ask for a recount.

Earlier Monday, Mr. Whist said an announcement by returning officer Helen Millward that several ballots printed for use in the election omitted the Social Credit candidate's name would have no bearing on a decision for a recount.

"Naturally we are interested to know how many of these ballots were cast and the legal interpretation thereof," he said, "but the main decision will stem from the decisive service vote that narrowed the gap between Dr. Willoughby and myself."

The service vote roughly halved Dr. Willoughby's plurality in the four-way fight.

Vet Dies In Vancouver

Victoria-raised William A. Moore, 40, a veteran of the Japanese siege of Hong Kong 22 years ago, died Monday in Vancouver where he had lived since the Second World War.

He was a fire-fighter for the Vancouver fire department and active in union affairs.

Mr. Moore lived at 4438 Valencia, North Vancouver, where the widow, Marjorie, and four children survive.

The veteran went to Sir James Douglas and Victoria High Schools before joining the army.

After transferring to the Winnipeg Grenadiers, a rifle unit, he served in Jamaica and Bermuda, returned to Canada and went with the unit when it was sent to the British garrison a Hong Kong in September, 1941, where he was wounded.

The city fell at Christmas and Mr. Moore was one of the prisoners who spent the rest of the war behind Japanese wire.
